

Excludes Area ABMHistoric Arms Accord Is Reached

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union reached "final agreement" today on a two-part agreement to limit the deployment of strategic nuclear weapons, the White House announced.

Signing of the accord was scheduled for a Kremlin ceremony late tonight, following President Nixon's dinner for his Soviet hosts.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said the accord was reached at a two-hour afternoon summit meeting with the three top Soviet leaders—Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexi N. Kosygin.

The agreement culminates 2½ years of negotiations.

Word of a SALT agreement came after a day of on-again, off-again reports of the prospects for a Friday settlement.

One part of the agreement, limiting defensive antiballistic missile sites in each country, takes the form of a treaty subject to ratification by the U.S. Senate and was agreed upon first.

Under the terms of a companion executive agreement, which will take effect without legislative action, deployment of offensive nuclear missiles will be frozen at the present level so far as the United States is concerned. The Russians will be allowed to catch up with the U.S. lead in launching platforms.

The accord permits both countries to replace existing offensive missiles, whether on land or aboard ships at sea, with more sophisticated weapons as technological advances permit.

At about the same time, Tass reported the President and Soviet leaders had agreed to establish a joint commission to "promote the development of mutually advantageous relations in trade." It was the first break-through in difficult trade negotiations since the President arrived here Monday.

The creation of such a commission had been suggested before the summit talks by some U.S. trade officials because difficult negotiations on settlement of Soviet World War II lend-lease debts stood in the way of any broader trade agreements, such as multimillion-dollar grain purchases from the United States by Russia, plus U.S. credits.

U.S. summit negotiators had made no secret of their hopes for the signing this evening of a treaty and companion executive agreement to limit the deployment of offensive and defensive nuclear missiles on land and at sea.

Ziegler declined to say what was holding up the pact, nor would he confirm reports that technical snags persisted. He even refused to repeat that there was "agreement in principle," as he had said shortly before the summit talks began this week.

Gerard Smith and Vladimir Semenov, the chief American and Soviet arms negotiators, had been expected to arrive Thursday after successful conclusion of their talks in Helsinki. But Smith postponed his departure from the Finnish capital, and a source there said there was "some little sticky last-minute problem."

Leonid Zamyatin, the chief Soviet press spokesman for the summit talks, told newsmen this did not indicate any major obstacles had developed. He said had that been the case, Smith and Semenov would have come to Moscow to put the issues before Nixon and the top Soviet leaders.

However, a Soviet television commentator, Valentin Zorin, said in a broadcast Thursday night that "there are problems which still require much effort and much work."

Some American observers suspected that the Nixon entourage would prefer to unveil the arms agreement in time for publication in the widely read Sunday morning newspapers back home and were attempting to create and element of suspense after four days of signing ceremonies for agreements concluded 10 days to three months ago.

The Nixons went to the Bolshoi Ballet Thursday night to see "Swan Lake" and encountered their first public expression of opposition to the President's Vietnam policy. During a hush just before the last act, a woman in the top balcony shouted either "via dal Vietnam"—get out of Vietnam—in Italian or "Freedom for Vietnam" in English.

The house lights went up for the audience to applaud the conductor, but many in the audience turned toward the presidential box as they clapped.

TENTATIVE SALT AGREEMENTArms Accord

President Nixon and Soviet leaders today announced an historic arms agreement on offensive and defensive nuclear weapons. Initial reports indicate that an ABM System planned for the Sedalia area is not included in the treaty, which stipulates that only a facility in Grand Forks, N. D., and another in Washington, D. C., would be deployed.

(UPI)

First Reports Indicate Area Project Excluded

According to the Associated Press, indications from Moscow concerning the arms limitation treaty reveal that defense installations for the Safeguard Antiballistic missile system in the United States would be limited to the base at Grand Forks, N.D., and a new facility surrounding Washington, D.C.

The AP said it did not appear that an ABM system designated for the Pettis County area, as well as a system presently under construction near Great Falls, Mont., would be constructed or deployed, under the strategic arms limitation treaty.

A spokesman for the Army's

Safeguard System Command in Huntsville, Ala., told The Democrat-Capital Friday morning "we're just not in a position to comment" about what impact the treaty signed in Moscow Thursday night would have on a proposed Safeguard complex in Pettis County.

"We know just as much as you do, or what we read in the newspapers," he said.

The Army has had a four-site Safeguard complex under study in the Sedalia area to include a Missile Site Radar installation and four remote launch sites.

Adults or Juveniles?

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — A hearing may be held by June 12 to determine whether two juveniles suspected in the fatal shooting of an Independence youth Wednesday will be tried as adults or juveniles, officials here said late Thursday.

Glenn Dale Hyatt, 18, was shot in the head shortly after 1 p.m. about 11 miles southeast of here on Route VV. His body was found at 2:10 p.m. by Doyle Hart, Edwards, who was traveling to Springfield with his wife. The motor on Hyatt's car was still running when the body was found, leading officials to believe the shooting could have occurred about an hour earlier.

While officials conducted their investigation here, the dead boy's father, Donald Hyatt, said his son told him he had been asked to become an undercover narcotics agent for Independence police, a claim denied by Independence officials.

"He said the Independence police wanted him for undercover work, wanted him to make some buys for them," the father said Thursday. "I don't believe Glen would be making this up. He was not that kind of boy."

The Independence police chief, Lawrence Cook, said, however, that Hyatt never worked for the department, nor was his name on a confidential list of informers. Cook said the department does not employ undercover agents.

A detective's business card, found in Hyatt's possession, led to the arrest of two 16-year-old Independence youths late Wednesday night.

Benton County Sheriff Robert Breshears said the detective, Billy L. Reynolds of Independence, made a list of Hyatt's friends and "they just checked out one after another until both boys were picked up."

The two youths were taken to the jail in Warsaw Thursday and are awaiting a hearing before the juvenile court judge, Charles V. Barker. The judge will decide whether the two should be tried as adults.

Breshears said one youth signed a statement and agreed to show where the gun used in the slaying was thrown away.

The sheriff said he had a witness who picked up the two youths who were hitchhiking less than a mile from where Hyatt's body was found about 11 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Donald Hyatt said, "I can't believe Glen went down there (to Warsaw). His car wasn't that good. He never took off without telling us."

The father said his son first mentioned the undercover work a month ago, and a week later Glen "said he was going to see some kid to buy some drugs from him for the Independence police."

"He said, 'You know, if I do that, that will be a $200 price tag on my head,' and I said 'I wish you wouldn't have anything to do with it,'" the father related. He said Glen did not use drugs.

Hyatt said Glen applied for military service after graduating from high school in 1971 but was rejected for flat feet.

Wednesday Benton County authorities indicated the Hyatt youth and the two

Hearing Is Expected on SlayingDowd Visits Sedalia On Campaign Sweep

Ed Dowd, St. Louis, visited Sedalia Thursday as part of a sweep through Western Missouri in his quest for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Dowd said the polls show him to be the top contender for the Democratic nomination, adding, "We expect to run first in outstate Missouri."

The candidate said he would also win heavily in St. Louis and its suburbs, and expects to finish at least a close second in Kansas City.

Dowd called the top issue facing Missourians that of governmental reorganization. He said adoption of the "Little Hoover" recommendations would make state government more "streamlined" and would also save money. He estimated the figure at up to $75 million a year.

This, in combination with natural economic growth, would give the state enough money to undertake needed programs without a tax increase, Dowd said.

"I don't think the Democratic party has measured up to what the people can expect," the candidate said. He called for more aid to education, capital improvements, additional help and programs for the elderly and for the retarded.

While opposing a tax increase, Dowd said he also did not support the so-called "Blackwell amendment," which would require a vote of the people on each tax hike. He said this would be very expensive, and called it a way of "passing the buck."

On other issues, Dowd said state funds should be deposited in banks throughout the state without regard to politics, and should earn some interest. He also said he favored a proposed amendment that would require open meetings of public bodies and reveal how legislators vote in committee.

Dowd said he saw "constitutional problems" with a recently-enacted state law that would provide public aid to private secondary schools and colleges.

Ed Dowd

The candidate said he favored "professionalization" of state offices, but would stop short of putting all departments on a Civil Service basis, saying that the governor should have "latitude" in hiring and firing.

Dowd expressed support for a 2-cent increase in the gas tax in Missouri, and also said he would be in favor of some liberalizing of Missouri's abortion law, but said he could offer no specifics at this time.

English Repartee

There were lots of candid comments and witty remarks typical of Englishmen at a press conference Thursday at State Fair Community College. Six business and professional men from Rotary District 107 in east-central England aired their views at the conference. The men are guests of Sedalia Rotarians and will be here through

Exchange Group Airs Views

By P. C. THOMAS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

How does an Englishman view the gun control law in the United States?

"Your Constitution says that a citizen has the right to bear arms. That's very, very wrong."

This is the opinion of Michael John Friel, solicitor and deputy clerk to the Nottingham City Justices, Nottinghamshire, England. Friel is one of six Englishmen currently staying in Sedalia homes on a Rotary group study exchange program. They held a press conference

Thursday afternoon at State Fair Community College.

Comparing the law and order situation in England and the United States, Peter A. Greenway, a research chemist from Lincoln, said, "Our policeman doesn't carry a gun. He doesn't have to." Others of the group explained that a policeman is a highly respected person in England and the only weapon he carries is a "night stick." There is no capital punishment in England, one of them pointed out.

The team leader is Bob Murby, a senior boys school headmaster from Northampton and the only Rotarian in the group. Other members of the group are Tony Coleman, accountant, Lincolnshire; Kenneth P. D. Cooper, police inspector, Northamptonshire; and Kevin Greateorex, construction executive, Staffordshire.

Cooper said people he has talked to in this country "have a great respect for law. But I haven't met people at the other level," he added, meaning that the group's contacts so far have been only with business and professional leaders.

Asked what the average Englishman's impression of Americans was, one of the

Probe Calhoun Mining Fatality

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CALHOUN — Federal inspectors concluded a day of investigations at the Tebo Mine here Thursday in a probe of the death of a coal miner who was fatally struck Wednesday by the bucket of a large power shovel in the mine. The result of the investigation is not known.

William Hardy, 64, Calhoun, was in his 14th year at the mine, a subsidiary of Peabody Coal Co., when he was crushed by the huge shovel. A co-worker, Robert Hutson, 41, Clinton, who was injured in the mishap, told The Democrat-Capital from his bed in Golden Valley Hospital, Clinton, what he remembered of the incident:

"God, all I really remember was we were working on it (the shovel) and I heard a man holler 'run'."

Hutson said he ran away from the shovel while Hardy and another miner, Mike Mothersbaugh, Windsor, ran toward the shovel. Mothersbaugh "got under the shovel," Hutson said, but Hardy was struck by the shovel.

Henry County Coroner Dr. Richard H. King told The Democrat-Capital, "death was instantaneous." He said he was convinced Hardy's death was "obviously accidental."

Hutson, operator of the machine, said the shovel "was just sitting there," completely turned off, with "no one in the control room."

King said he learned a cable broke causing the bucket, large enough to hold a small car, to fall the 30 feet from the boom of the earth mover to the ground.

Eugene Womble, mine superintendent, declined to release information surrounding the accident. "As yet," he said, "we haven't got the information to give out." He explained the federal investigator's presence at the mine was "standard procedure." Womble also said, "We'll have to wait for a coroner's report before we can give out any details."

King said, "They (mine officials) will want a coroner's report." However, he said representatives of the mine "have not requested one yet."

Hardy was born July 10, 1907, in Weir, Kan.

He is survived by his widow, Erma Hardy, of the home; three sons: William T. Hardy, Fort Worth, Tex.; Robert Hardy, Santa Anna, Calif.; and John Hardy, Pittsburg, Kan.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Friday at the Sickman-Dunning Funeral Chapel, Clinton.

Burial was in Garden of Memories Cemetery, Pittsburg, Kan.

Alabaman Named Pastor Here

The Rev. Roger Edward Williams, 44, a native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was Sunday called to the pastorate of Broadway Presbyterian Church. He will assume office June 1.

Rev. Williams' last pastorate was at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, St. Joseph, after which he did graduate work in history at the University of Alabama. He received a B.A. from that University in 1947 and a B.D. from Louisville Presbyterian Seminary in 1950. In 1965 an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree was conferred on him by Tarkio College, Tarkio, Mo., in recognition of his leadership in the community, presbytery and the synod.

Dr. Williams' first pastorate was in Sumpter County, Ala., from 1950-52. From 1952-55 he was pastor of the Pine Ridge Presbyterian Church, Natchez, Miss. The next 15 years he was at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, St. Joseph, first as associate pastor from 1955-56 and as pastor from 1956-70.

While in graduate school, he served as guest minister in several Alabama churches.

Rev. Williams' wife is the former Rebecca Andre'e Benoist of Natchez, Miss. She attended Hollins College, Mississippi State College for Women and the University of Mississippi, and has taught in the St. Joseph school system.

The Williams have five children — Caroline and Roger Edward Jr., both students at the University of Alabama, Mark Clinton, 16, John Anderson, 14, and Mary Amelia, 10.

The Williams reside at 3100 Wing.

Religious Labels Had Curious Origin

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—From the start, religious movements have begun in the midst of ridicule. In fact, mockery gave many of them their names. And hints of that same process are around today.

It shows up in the "Jesus Freak" label pinned disparagingly on the free-wheeling devotional movement among youths that has spread widely outside the churches, causing raised eyebrows among churchmen.

Historically, the fun-poking at new religious manifestations is an old story. It has marked the origin of many major Christian denominations, which often have been permanently tagged by it.

A few examples: The name, "Methodist," was a sarcastic barb aimed at early participants in the movement started by John Wesley at Oxford University in 1729, involving strict rules of daily study, worship and service to the poor.

Fellow Oxford students expressed their contempt in a variety of nicknames, such as "Bible bigots" and "Methodists." Actually, Wesley later abandoned the rigid regime, and stressed a "felt experience" of acceptance by God as a free gift.

But the scoffing name stuck, and Methodists came to espouse it as their own, even though the "methodical" system of seeking salvation was dropped at the outset.

A similar case is that of the Society of Friends, commonly called Quakers.

That name, now used in a positive sense, first was hurled at them in derision in a period when they were under severe persecution in 17th century England.

Put on trial before a magistrate in Derby, their founder, George Fox, told the judge he should "tremble at the word of God." Thereafter, scoffers referred to them as "shakers" or "Quakers."

But they came to use the name themselves.

It is a similar story for the Lutherans, started by the reformer Martin Luther in 16th century Germany in a break from Roman Catholicism.

Opponents jeered his followers as "Lutheran" dissenters from the Church, although they themselves contended they were upholding the Church more rightly.

Gradually they came to accept the designation, although Luther himself objected to it. Most European Lutheran churches use the name, "Evangelical," but also affirm they are Lutheran, a name formally used in this country.

Even the early Christians first got that appellation in mockery by Greek and Roman pagans, who called them "Christ-ers" or "Christians." The missionary-apostle, Paul, writes that believers first were called by that name at Antioch. The new faith was illegal under the early Roman Empire, and faced wide persecution.

But the epistle of Peter advises that the name should be bravely and proudly borne, even if punished. "If one suffers as a Christian," the apostle writes, "let him not be ashamed, but under that name let him glorify God."

Memorial Services

Epworth UMC: At Epworth United Methodist Church Sunday morning, there will be a special service of remembrance for members who passed away during the year. The pastor, the Rev. Eugene Trice, will preach on the topic, "Diggers of Wells." The youth choir from the Church of the Nazarene will sing special numbers.

Flat Creek: Flat Creek Baptist Church will hold a homecoming and memorial service at 2 p.m. Sunday. A basket dinner will be held at noon following the regular worship service.

The Rev. Donald D. Boling, Waco, Tex., will be the speaker. He is a former pastor of the Flat Creek church.

At Lincoln: Sunny Side Methodist Church, Lincoln, will hold a memorial service at 2 p.m. Sunday at the church, according to R. C. Davis, Warsaw. A basket dinner will be held at noon.

FAYETTE, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri West Conference of the United Methodist Church has favored, by a narrow margin, amnesty for young men who have chosen jail or exile to protest the Indo-China war.

Preliminary For Reis Is Held

Joseph A. Reis, Route 3, was bound over to Pettis County Circuit Court Friday on a charge of receiving stolen property worth more than $50. The preliminary hearing was held in Magistrate Court.

He also was served with a parole violation warrant late Tuesday in connection with a Jackson County incident earlier in the year.

juveniles were traveling to the Lake of the Ozarks together. They said they had ruled robbery out as a motive and did not know why the Hyatt boy was shot.

Following the shooting, the juveniles apparently attempted to drive Hyatt's car away from the scene, but failed. It was later learned they hitchhiked to Warsaw, but it was not known how they returned to Independence. An earlier report that they had hitched a ride to Sedalia was unfounded.

visitors replied, "Loud, brash and extrovert." Some of the group members disagreed on this point when the group leader explained that much of what the common man in England knows about Americans is through contacts with U.S. servicemen and tourists. Murby said since coming to the United States, the group members have "realized we were wrong" about stereotyped impressions of Americans.

Greatorex added, "Before I came to this country, I thought you were all normal people. I still think so."

Murby, an educator, answered questions on English high schoolers. Parents in England co-operate with schools more than American parents in maintaining school discipline, he said. "In England, the average parent doesn't go out of his way" to support an erring child against the school, he pointed out.

Murby said the "strict discipline" in English schools is "largely because of the co-operation from the home. Here, parents don't accept the responsibility of expecting from their children standards of behavior," he pointed out.

The group members were very cautious in commenting on the situation in Ireland. One of them thought the best solution is a "peaceful agreement. But you may not get everybody's satisfaction," he added.

Rotary families hosting the visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Callis, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Don Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brown and Mr. and Mrs. John Kehde.

The Englishmen will be in Sedalia through Saturday. They are from Rotary District 107 in east-central England and are hosts of District 607 comprising southwest and central Missouri. Sedalia Rotary chairman for the group study exchange program is Fred Davis, West Walnut Hills.

The Great Britain study team presented a program which included comparisons of the Mid-American way of life as contrasted with that of their country Thursday evening at the Walnut Hills Country Club. They were guests of members of the Rotary Club, their wives, members of their families and friends, for the dinner meeting.

The members were presented by Harry Walch, who served with Fred Davis in arrangements for the Sedalia visit.

Donald Barnes, club president, introduced Duane Sterling, Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, Rotary District 607 chairman in charge of arrangements for the team's five week visit in the district, and Russell Ireland and his wife, of Warrensburg, who are helping with arrangements.

The group was entertained with special music by the Smith-Cotton stage band under the direction of Bob Cummings, music director at S.C. The evening's program concluded with a travelogue of slides of interesting out-of-the-way points of Colorado visited by E. B. Smith and his sons, of Sedalia, on a motorcycle trip last summer.

MPSC Concludes Bell Hearings

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission concluded Thursday nearly three weeks of hearings into a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. request for a rate increase.

The company now has until June 20, and the PSC staff and other interested parties until June 30, to file briefs before the commission hears oral arguments in the case July 6.

The request, which would produce an additional $63.5 million in gross annual revenue for the company, is under suspension until Aug. 29. If the PSC has not reached a decision on it by that time, it will automatically go into effect.

R. R. Shockley, vice president for the company's Missouri-Illinois operations, was one of the last to testify before the hearings came to a close. He told the commission telephone service to Missouri customers would suffer if the company is not permitted to earn what he termed a reasonable rate of return.

Bond's Tour To Include Stop Here

State Auditor Christopher S. (Kit) Bond, Republican candidate for nomination for governor, will arrive in Sedalia about 10 a.m. Thursday, as part of a 1,200-mile campaign tour of Missouri.

Bond will be on board the "Bondwagon," a school bus converted into a mobile campaign headquarters, and will be accompanied by his wife, Carolyn, a group of young "Bond Boosters," and members of the news media. The tour will include stops in 23 cities and towns and will last six days, it was reported.

"One reason a candidate campaigns is to tell voters what he hopes to do and how he would handle the responsibilities of government. But I find it is just as important for a candidate to listen as to talk. The people of Missouri are keenly aware of the problems in state government. They are willing to share their concerns, their ideas and their hopes with a candidate," Bond said, adding that he promised he would listen.

"I promise that our programs will be based on the real needs of all the people of this state," he said.

Venue Change Is Granted Accused Man

A change of venue from Pettis County Circuit Court to Saline County Circuit Court was granted Friday to Robert Anthony Marshall, 17, 418 West Saline, who is charged with second-degree murder in the Feb. 28 stabbing death of Craig Hunter, 20, Lexington.

The attorneys for Marshall cited "widely publicized" reports by the news media of Pettis and Cooper Counties as the reason for the change of venue.

Marshall is currently being held in the Saline County jail in Marshall in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Hunter was stabbed to death Feb. 28 and taken to Bothwell Hospital where he was pronounced dead. Marshall was taken into custody shortly after police found signs of a struggle and a knife believed to be the murder weapon.

Marshall, who was 16 at the time of the incident, was turned over to juvenile authorities. But he was certified March 16 by Circuit Judge Frank Meyer to stand trial as an adult.

If convicted, Marshall faces a minimum sentence of ten years. The maximum sentence is life imprisonment, county officials reported earlier.

Speaker Is Named For Banquet Here

James W. Stephens, Kansas City, recently elected president of the American Industrial Development Council, will address Sedalia's seventh annual industrial banquet June 22. The banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. at Holiday Inn.

A certified industrial developer, Stephens also serves as vice-president of community services for the Missouri Public Service Co. He began his career with the company in 1940 and was elected vice-president in 1964.

Stephens holds an electrical engineering degree from the University of Missouri — Rolla which conferred on him an honorary Doctor of Engineering degree in 1971.

He is past president of the Greater

James W. Stephens

Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Industrial Council and the Industrial Ambassador program of that organization.

Other organizations in which Stephens holds office are Missouri Community Betterment Program and the Missouri State Chamber's economic development council. He is a member of the Society of Industrial Realtors, board of governors of the American Royal, past chairman of Missouri 4-H Foundation, a trustee of the Scottish Rite Foundation and Pension Trust of Missouri and a director of Raytown Bank. He has also served as board president of the Metropolitan Junior College district of Kansas City.

Bill Hall, Sedalia industrial development director, said, "It is an honor to have Stephens as our banquet speaker because of his recognized professionalism and background in the field of industrial development." He added that the banquet is limited to 175 persons and that reservations must be made before June 19 at the Industrial Development office, 827-0884.

Conviction And Sentence Upheld

The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld the conviction and sentencing of a man tried in Pettis County Court in October, 1969, it was learned Friday.

In a letter to the Circuit Court, the higher court indicated it had rejected the appeal motion filed by the attorneys of John Wayne Griggs. Griggs was convicted on charges of armed robbery and sentenced to serve 20 years in the state penitentiary.

The original motion alleged that the Circuit Court had failed to give Griggs a hearing to determine his competency to stand trial. The motion also alleged that the punishment given the defendant was cruel and unusual.

The Missouri Supreme Court ruled that Griggs was mentally capable of standing trial and the punishment was within the bounds of the law.

Sentenced To Church Attendance

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A young woman who pleaded guilty to murder has been sentenced to go to church each Sunday for the next 10 years by a judge who admits he skips religious services now and again himself.

Eartha Lee Griffith, 28, appeared before Circuit Court Judge Claude R. Edwards on Thursday and was told she could decide how to spend the next 10 years of her life.

"I told her she could go to jail for the next 10 years or spend every Sunday through 1982 in a pew," said Edwards. "For the first time since I have known her, she smiled. She chose church."

Miss Griffith had pleaded guilty March 27 to the second degree murder of her boyfriend, Eddie Lee Lampkin. She admitted shooting him to death in the Orlando home they had shared.

"There were tremendous extenuating circumstances in her case," Edwards said after the sentencing. "Her boyfriend had earlier beaten her almost to death and had threatened her with a weapon."

Edwards said a presentence investigation showed that she had no prior record, "so after consulting with her minister, speaking with her and considering the case at length, I decided on giving her the option."

He stipulated that Miss Griffith must obtain a high school diploma within the next four years—she has completed the 11th grade. He also ordered her to pay the $2,000 in court costs at the rate of $20 a month.

Edwards has set mandatory church attendance as a probationary term before.

"I feel that association with people who go to church is beneficial whether or not those people are able to convert the probationer to be religious," Edwards said.

His outlook is "a bit unorthodox," Edwards said. Several lawyers have questioned it as unconstitutional. But his practice has not been challenged in the courts.

The 50-year-old judge said he is a member of the First Methodist Church in Orlando.

"I hate to admit it, but unfortunately I'm not as regular as I should be—I slip now and again," he said.

Discord In Veto By Hearn

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A veto of a federal grant of $63,500 for legislative staffing has widened the rift between Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the Missouri Senate.

"Everything our committee worked on to improve the legislature is now down the drain," Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, told The Associated Press. "There's just nothing left."

Spradling is chairman of the Senate Accounts Committee which sought the federal grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity to hire Wayne Waldo, former assistant attorney general, to act as counsel and researcher for Senate committees.

The governor vetoed the grant. He said the proposed $29,000-plus salary for Waldo was out of line and would cause friction with the House, with other legislative employees and with state agencies where salaries are much lower.

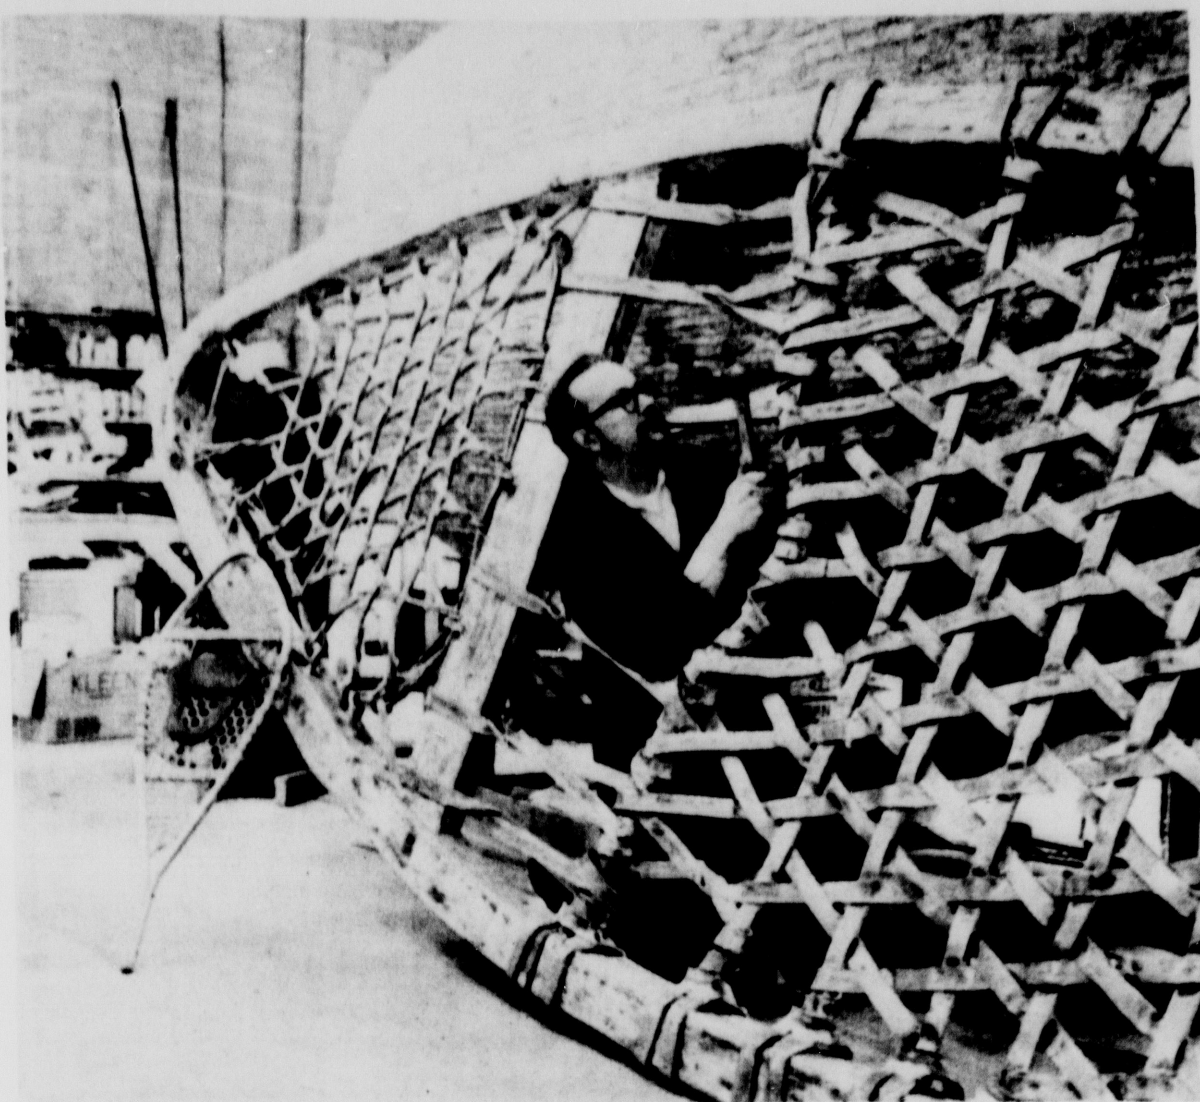

If the legislature wanted to hire extra staff, he said, provision should be made to staff House committees as well and salaries should be kept in line with state pay scales.

Spradling noted the governor also vetoed a bill earlier that would have allowed the legislature to increase its staff.

He said the governor's actions meant the Senate would not be able to put into effect any of the recommendations made by a citizens' advisory group which urged that major committees have professional aides to do research between sessions.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, who worked with Spradling to set up the new program, also expressed disappointment at the governor's veto.

"This is a continuation of an attempt by the governor to prevent a more efficient legislative body," he said.

Ann Landers

Tips on Preparing For Job Interview

Dear Ann Landers: I work in the personnel office of a small company and am writing in the hope that you will print my letter before graduation. I have some advice for individuals who will be looking for employment. It is amazing how many people come in here ill-prepared. Here are some suggestions which might make the difference between getting the job and not getting it.

1. Bring something to write with — preferably a pen. If your handwriting is poor, print.
2. Answer all questions to the best of your ability. The firm, no matter how large or small, asks questions for a reason.
3. Have your social security number with you and —
4. If you are a male, your selective service number.
5. Be able to list the schools you've attended (starting with elementary) and the dates of attendance.
6. Be prepared to trace your employment record, including beginning dates and quitting dates, names of employers, location, positions held and salary.
7. Be prepared to list at least three people (besides employers) who will give character references. Know their addresses and telephone numbers.

I have been in a position to observe a great deal of embarrassment and disappointment because people couldn't meet the simple requirements listed above. The candidate who has to go home and come back with facts and figures is going to lose out to one who has the information at his fingertips. I've observed, too, Ann, that the person who is prepared has an air of confidence that makes a good first impression. — Gainesville

Dear Gainesville: (What an appropriate signature!) And now I'd like to add a suggestion of my own.

I'm aware that many capable, bright young people wear their hair long, have beards and dress non-establishment. I am also aware that there are laws forbidding discrimination against a job candidate because he has long hair and a beard. But if an employer doesn't like your looks, the chances of being hired are sharply reduced. So if you really want the job, don't apply for it with a chip on your shoulder the size of a gangplank.

Dear Ann Landers: "I'm upset and can't think straight. Just say 'go' ... or 'don't go.'"

A good friend phoned last night to say she and her sister had just finished addressing the invitations to her wedding. They had miscalculated somehow and were six invitations short. She asked if I would feel hurt if I didn't receive an engraved invitation, but a note instead. I said, "Of course not." Now my mother tells me I am crazy — that I should not go to the wedding because it is plain that my friend considers me less important than the other guests. What do you say? I really want to go, Ann. — Bon Bon

Dear Bon: I say go. The bride is obviously in a spot and she is counting on her closest friends to understand. Don't let her down.

Racial Strife Explodes In Waterloo Thursday

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Racial strife hit Waterloo late Thursday and officials braced for a possible recurrence Friday.

Police Thursday were forced to break down a door to free a school superintendent, 32 protesters were arrested, persons carrying firearms were reported in the streets as two vacant buildings burned near the downtown business section, and rocks were hurled at passing cars.

A two-block section in the business district's predominately black eastside was barricaded for about an hour while firemen fought two fires and police stayed outside the perimeter.

Waterloo, a city of 75,000, has the state's largest single concentration of blacks, totaling about 10 per cent of its residents.

The disruption had been simmering for several days and started in the Waterloo school system. Schools, however, were to remain open Friday if calm prevailed.

Blacks had protested the use of teaching materials used in a speech class taught at West Junior High School by Mrs. Alice Hayes.

The blacks in Mrs. Hayes' room Wednesday included parents. They resented a story that has been in use here about ten years. It relates the experience of a small black boy who ate a watermelon that was to have been served at a Sunday dinner.

In the story are references to a "nice, good, ole, big, fat black Mammy," "black woolly head" and "little, fat, brown face."

Blacks demanded the firing of Mrs. Hayes and the school principal, Joseph Doyle. Mrs. Hayes was then suspended for the remainder of the school year while an investigation was conducted into the blacks' charges.

But Thursday some 1,200 white students staged an assembly after 25 whites walked out of class in protest of Mrs. Hayes' suspension.

About 100 white students marched 1.5 miles to the school district administration building to conduct a sit-in while waiting for a conference with school superintendent George Diestelmeier, who was unable to meet with them.

In the face of possible disorder, police Thursday afternoon had positioned themselves at two senior and three junior high schools.

The blacks, meanwhile, marched through the business district and about 125 occupied portions of the Waterloo Community School District administration building.

An estimated 50 blacks took over Diestelmeier's office and said they wouldn't let him go until the firing of the two teachers was official.

Diestelmeier was kept in the office from about 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. when police, who were unable to talk the blacks into releasing the superintendent, used a power saw to cut through the office door and then charged inside.

Diestelmeier was sitting alone in his office, shaken but unhurt. The office had been ransacked.

The blacks ran out a side door, then returned to the main lobby and joined a larger group of less vociferous black adult and student protesters.

Police said 63 persons were in the lobby at 9 p.m., watching television on a set taken from Diestelmeier's office.

Black Hawk County Atty. David Dutton obtained an injunction late Thursday from District Court Judge George Heath to force the protesters to leave the lobby.

When they refused to leave, 32 were arrested on a charge of criminal trespass.

A crowd of some 200 whites cheered as the protesters were led to waiting police cars about 10 p.m. The 32 were arraigned and released on their own recognizance pending court appearances June 1.

Newsmen reported that a few passing cars were pelted with rocks after the arrests, and a few persons bearing arms were seen in the black section. A number of scattered fights also occurred.

Shortly before midnight a vacant two-story brick building caught fire. Police cordoned a two-block area while firemen brought the blaze under control.

Minutes later another vacant building began burning but was quickly extinguished. Officials gave no cause of the fires.

The district school board met in emergency session after Diestelmeier was released. The superintendent, however, was unable to sit in and was taken immediately from the school to his home.

School authorities and principals discussed whether to keep the school system open Friday.

They decided the schools and administration building would be open, but each official was told to call for assistance immediately if further disorder broke out.

Ichord Proposal On Suing Lawmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Too many frivolous suits are being used to pick policemen's pockets and steal time from the courts, says the head of a House committee on national security.

Armed with endorsements from police officials across the country, Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., of the House Internal Security Committee has introduced a bill requiring anyone suing lawmen to file a bond with the court.

The bond, Ichord said in a floor speech, would pay "reasonable investigative and legal costs should the defendant prevail."

"I do not think this would deter those who seriously believe they have been the victims of improper actions by police or those who believe their civil rights have been violated. But I do think it would make those who are interested only in harassing our police and courts hesitate to prostitute legal process for their own purposes."

In an interview Thursday, Ichord said police "are very uptight" about his effort to amend the 1948 Judicial Procedure Act, but he said his complaint centers on a 101-year-old civil rights law covering the legal liability of anyone acting against another person by virtue of any law.

Although this "was meant to provide a remedy when state law is inadequate," he said, "it is being used as a vehicle to harass by filing of nuisance actions ... and it has reached a crisis level."

It is under this 1871 law, he said, that 8,267 cases were filed last year, according to federal court records, a 700-per-cent increase in five years.

Lawmen usually are not paid well enough to finance expensive defense litigation on their own, and "such suits can reduce them to poverty, even force them deeply into debt," he said.

While no one objects to suits filed for false arrest or for civil liberties violations when such suits are justified, he said, too often suits are brought "as a ploy, to delay prosecution, to create publicity or to try to win sympathy for a patently guilty defendant." And, he said, the suits are helping overload courts.

Louis Harris Survey

Think Agreement Is Possible

By LOUIS HARRIS

Although most Americans are well aware of Soviet-U.S. tensions over Vietnam and the Middle East, nonetheless by 52-to-38 per cent they believe "it is possible for the United States and Russia to come to long-term agreements which will work." However, when asked just before the current summit meetings in Moscow what might come of them, only 6 per cent expected "major agreements," 51 per cent "minor agreements," and 31 per cent "none at all."

President Nixon's trip to Moscow receives a solid 4-to-1 backing from the public in the U.S. On May 9 and 10, a cross section of 1,385 households was asked: "All in all, do you favor or oppose President Nixon's summit trip to Russia?"

Nixon Summit to Moscow

	May	Feb.
	%	%
Favor	72	74
Oppose	18	13
Not Sure	10	13

Despite the heightened conflict over American mining of Haiphong harbor, designed to stop Soviet shipments of supplies to North Vietnam, better than 7 in 10 continue to favor the latest Presidential journey to a Communist capital. However, recognition of the tensions between the world's superpowers was evident.

The conflict over Vietnam dampened previously growing optimism over relations between the U.S. and Russia, with an 11-point decline in the number of persons who felt relations were "improving." But the prevailing mood is still not as tense as it was during the Johnson Administration days in 1968.

Still, the public's expectation of major breakthroughs at the summit talks has remained essentially cautious. People were asked: "Do you expect major agreements from President Nixon's summit trip to Moscow, minor agreements, or no agreements at all?"

Expectations from Summit

	May	Feb.
	%	%
Major agreements	6	9
Minor agreements	51	53
No agreements	31	24
Not sure	12	14

It is apparent that President Nixon entered the summit negotiations in an optimum position, as far as public opinion was concerned. A big majority favored his making the trip, but most did not have high expectations of a major breakthrough. Such a mood maximizes the effect of any concrete results achieved and politically cushions diplomatic disappointments.

Underlying American public opinion is the sense that it is possible for the world's two superpowers to work out a long-term way to live in peace, no matter how limited the agreements which might be reached at this summit conference.

Police Seeking Slaying Motive

FAIRMONT CITY, Ill. (AP) — Police were seeking a motive today in the slaying of Harold H. Wright, 45, the owner of an equipment and excavating firm.

He was found at his desk shortly before 7 a.m. Thursday. He had been shot several times and investigators said it appeared to be an "execution" style killing. The office showed no sign of a struggle.

Police said Wright had left home, in Fairview Heights, near East St. Louis, shortly after 6 a.m.

On March 20 Wright and another contractor, Sidney Collins wounded each other in an exchange of gunfire near East St. Louis. No charges were filed. Police said the two had been feuding.

Witness Testimony In Murder Trial

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Two persons testified Thursday that Collinsville lawyer David Rothenberg asked them to make threatening telephone calls to insurance investigator William S. Wells as a "practical joke."

Rothenberg, 29, is charged in the slaying of Wells, who was found beaten and shot in the trunk of his auto last December in East St. Louis.

Frank Thomalla, 25, of Overland, Mo., testified in Madison County Circuit Court that Rothenberg asked him to call Wells and threaten to get him. Thomalla said he made the call.

Couple Killed In Collision

BRUNSWICK, Mo. (AP) — Romie W. Spence, 67, and his wife, Gladys, 57, of Brunswick, were killed Thursday in a collision between their car and a train.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred where a private drive crosses the Norfolk and Western tracks about two miles east of Brunswick.

The persistent underpinning of the public's outlook is essentially optimistic for Soviet-American relations, despite temporary set-backs and tensions. There is little doubt that President Nixon's policy of pursuing summit meetings is widely supported.

Despite the difficulties, strains, and potential pit-falls, it is obvious that the American people lay real store by summitry by their President. Implicit is the impression that it is far better to seek out agreements, no matter how limited, between the superpowers of East and West, rather than to face confrontations in a nuclear era.

Easier Removal In Cold Water

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — For years I lived with the frustration of removing steamy rubber gloves after washing dishes in hot water. I usually ended up with ripping them by pulling too hard or with them inside-out after removal. Recently I discovered that by holding my hands under the cold water for just a few seconds before removing the gloves made them slip off without any trouble. I do hope this helps other busy homemakers. — MRS. S.O.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like some ideas from the readers on how to pack my house plants for a 300-mile move. Thanks. — MRS. R.S.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with manufacturers who do not put the proper instructions for the use of their products on the packages. My mother bought a package of three star appliques to use to hide a mend in a skirt but the package had no directions whatsoever. We did not know whether or not we should lick them, wet them, iron them on or what. We did iron them on and they stuck until the skirt was worn the first time, then all the stars fell off. We are still wondering how this should have been done. If I win a Polly Dollar I will buy another applique but will be very sure to get some instructions. — PATTI

DEAR POLLY and R.J.S. — I put separating zippers in hand-knit sweaters professionally. I buy a zipper about one-inch shorter than the length of the front of the sweater and one-inch wide grosgrain ribbon which I first shrink in hot water. Hand-whip the ribbon down each side of the front, leaving the top ends open. Baste the zipper in place and slip the top ends of the zipper twill into the open ends of the ribbon. Hand-sew on with a back-stitch or machine-stitch if you prefer and about three-sixteenth-inch back from the front edge, then slip-stitch the edge of the zipper twill to the grosgrain ribbon. This method will launder or dry clean and never catch in the zipper teeth. — MARIE (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

UFO's Are Still Seen, Club Told

Unidentified flying objects (UFOs) are not a thing of the past, but are still sighted throughout the world, Sedalia Kiwanians were told at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Ted Phillips Jr., a Sedalian who holds memberships in several astronomical and UFO study groups, said his study of such phenomena transformed him from an "interested skeptic" into a "concerned observer."

Although he has never seen a UFO personally, Phillips said he has investigated many sightings. He said the number of such sightings has never been higher than at the present.

Phillips was critical of the Air Force for ignoring UFO's since it closed Project Blue Book in 1969. He said a great many more UFO sightings remain unexplained than government officials indicate.

With the aid of color slides, Phillips traced several examples of UFO sightings, some of them in Missouri. He pointed out how physical evidence left on the ground at UFO landing sites is analyzed, adding that soil samples taken from such sites have unusual properties.

The speaker was introduced by Wendell Smith, who also led singing, accompanied by Mrs. Keith Maynard.

Members voted on a slate of officers and directors for the coming club year, and Gene Landon was elected to the post of vice-president. Henry Salveter was returned as treasurer, and directors elected were Bob Austin, the Rev. Jim Kane, Bob Gardner and Bob Johnson.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Bob Magee.

'Loyal Volunteers' Stick With Muskie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fann Harvey believes it when she answers the phone by saying: "Muskie for President."

So do Sarah Morgan and Betsy Boyce and Nina Cohen.

Across town in an almost equally relaxed Jackson-for-President headquarters, Betty Ramsey, wife of a retired Air Force officer, has a one-word answer when asked why she sticks by her man: "Loyalty." She says it with gusto.

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and Henry M. Jackson have ceased campaigning in Democratic presidential primaries, though they say they are still candidates for the nomination.

In each Washington headquarters, however, a small knot of loyal, unpaid volunteers keeps coming around. They are believers.

Between taking calls on a strikingly unit switchboard, Mrs. Harvey tells a reporter, "I don't think you can predict in these crazy days that Muskie is through."

The wife of a government lawyer, she says the other presidential choices remain unappealing despite Muskie's inability to rouse support during earlier primary fights.

Miss Betsy Boyce, the 24-year-old daughter of a "good liberal" Maryland politician, helps keep track of the estimated 175 delegates Muskie will have committed to him on the first round of balloting in Miami Beach.

She is less sure than her co-workers that a convention deadlocked between McGovern and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey will turn to Muskie, but thinks Muskie can have a say through his delegate strength.

Miss Boyce thinks Sen. George McGovern's image as a man of truth belongs more to Muskie and so she pitches in five days each week for free.

Sarah Morgan, a Muskie press aide, says reforms within the Democratic Party delegate-selection process are admi-nable, but draw away some of the legitimate strength Muskie would have translated into convention ballots.

Nina Cohen is another of the 15 volunteers who come in regularly. She helps a paid staff of nine in a building where five floors once buzzed with the business of electing a president.

Once there were 1,400 volunteers available in the Washington area. Muskie staff workers say they have a card file of 660 volunteers who would welcome a call to return should the Muskie candidacy come to full life again.

But now many desks are empty. People talk idly and seem to work at a leisurely pace.

At Jackson headquarters, Mrs. Ramsey, 48, of suburban Vienna, Va., says if there were another candidate she could work for. "I would have changed already." She will travel to the convention as a volunteer.

Transpo Display Exhibit Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transpo 72, a massive display of transport vehicles and systems, opens its gates to invited government, diplomatic and business leaders today and prepares for an official inauguration of the nine-day exhibition Saturday.

The big event on today's agenda was the expected arrival of the first jetliner to carry passengers across the United States—the old Boeing "Dash Eighty," prototype for the 707 airliners that sped the nation into the commercial jet age.

The plane, headlined around the world when it flew nonstop from Renton, Wash., to Baltimore with a party of newsmen 15 years ago, is to be turned over to the Smithsonian Institution.

The air show to follow is a typical feature planned for each afternoon of Transpo—a massed parachute drop, an aircraft flyover, and aerobatic demonstrations by British, Venezuelan and U.S. precision-flying teams.

Stirring as the air events might be, the greatest excitement for early visitors to the Transpo site near Dulles International Airport appears to be the fantastic array of novel ground transportation systems, including:

—Two electrically driven six-passenger monocab vehicles, whizzing along a 1,950-foot monorail track.

—Two types of "people movers" that operate along guideways.

—Six-passenger and 10-passenger vehicles riding a self-generated air cushion and propelled by linear induction.

—Twelve models of experimental safety vehicles of U.S., German, Italian, French, Japanese and Swedish manufacture, some never before shown publicly.

—Acres of ground displays of various motorized vehicles and more than 80 aircraft.

Australia's population at the end of 1971 was 12,881,100 the government statistician reported.

The Grim Reminders Of Highway Safety

A deadly numbers game is being played on highways in Pettis County, what with five persons already killed thus far into the year — one a month.

The highway death rate in the county is running well ahead of last year, and promises to rise even more sharply as summer wears on and increasing numbers of families take to the highways.

Reminders on traffic safety are especially appropriate as the nation embarks upon the Memorial Day weekend, traditionally one of the top periods for highway carnage.

Annually, Americans slaughter one another on the nation's highways to the tune of nearly 60,000 lives a year. This makes the Vietnam war look like a piker in comparison.

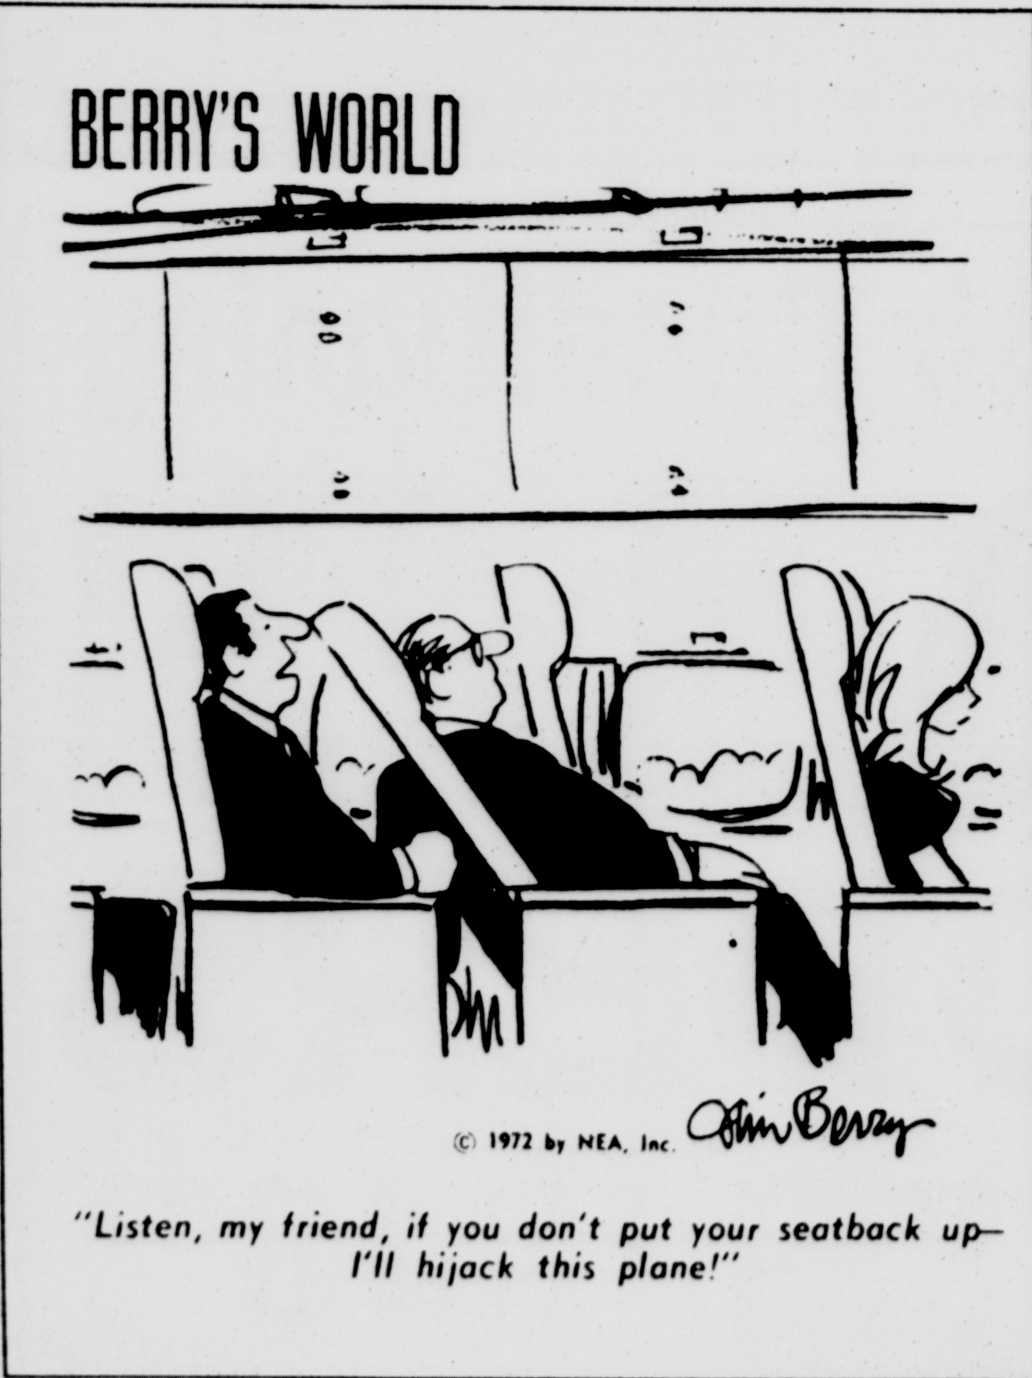

Highway deaths are brutal, bloody affairs, snuffing out lives in the flash of an eye. An eye-witness report of the aftermath of a recent four-fatality accident on South Highway 65, as seen by a member of The Democrat's staff, appeared in yesterday's paper. It does not make pleasant reading.

A sizable number of the fatal accidents that have occurred so far in this area involved head-on collisions, the most deadly combination. The details in many cases are similar: cars and trucks rounding bends or topping hills on the wrong side of the road, or even on straightaways one vehicle inexplicably swerving into the path of another.

Although such accidents are the hardest to avoid, some can be if motorists will drive defensively, fully expecting that the other guy will do something totally unexpected and insane.

This kind of defensive driving, while at the same time observing all traffic safety precautions yourself, will go a long way toward lowering the highway death rate, and keeping Pettis County—and all counties—from writing a new fatality record in red.

Carl Rowan Political Pressures Are Growing For Ted Kennedy

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) has some agonizing decisions to make about the upcoming Presidential campaign.

He is being pressed to show his humility, his loyalty to the party, his depth of opposition to the policies of the Nixon administration, by joining the Democratic ticket as a vice presidential candidate.

That throws the handsome young leader of the Kennedy clan into a dilemma where sentiments and loyalties collide with cold judgments about a venture that may be politically hopeless and personally dangerous.

Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) has become so confident that he will win California's critical winner-take-all primary on June 6, with its 271 delegate votes, and go on to win the nomination, WASHINGTON — Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., after first refusing to endorse Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination, has now agreed to throw his support to McGovern if the crucial California primary appears close.

Earlier, Kennedy turned down a personal appeal from McGovern for an endorsement. "You've already got my whole family," begged off Kennedy, who has tried to make it a rule to keep out of other people's primaries.

But later, Kennedy indicated through intermediaries that he would help McGovern in California if his support would be decisive. The Massachusetts senator has a strong following among California's blacks and chicanos, who lean toward Hubert Humphrey but could be influenced by Kennedy.

Both McGovern and Humphrey consider it essential to carry California, whose huge bloc of delegates will go to the winner no matter how small his victory margin may be.

This has pitted the two contenders in a high-noon showdown. The drama is heightened by the fact that they are close personal friends and former next-door neighbors. When McGovern was sick, Humphrey brought him hot soup.

For the sake not only of their friendship but the prospects of defeating President Nixon in November, McGovern and Humphrey have agreed not to cut up one another in the California primary. They have also established an informal liaison to stop their political disciples from engaging in smear politics.

Already, McGovern has stopped the circulation of campaign pictures showing Humphrey warmly greeting Georgia's former racist governor, Lester Maddox. McGovern also wouldn't let his campaigners refer to the Vietnam war as "the Johnson-Humphrey war." Humphrey, for his part, has stopped the distribution of material purporting to show that McGovern is anti-Israel.

But as high noon approaches on June 6, there may be a temptation in the rival camps to throw a final punch.

In an unusually conciliatory move toward Peking, the White House is vigorously mobilizing the administration to fight what it calls "arrant nonsense" about Red China's role in world dope trafficking.

The White House gesture toward Mao Tse-tung comes even as President Nixon is wooing Mao's arch rival in the Communist world, Soviet party head Leonid Brezhnev.

A White House memo contains evidence that Richard Nixon, once the implacable foe of Communist China, is now defending China. The memo was circulated quietly to the Departments of State, Defense, Treasury and the U.S. Information Agency.

The memo urges them to fight "propaganda" against Red China. Included with the memo is a two-page briefing paper prepared by the federal intelligence agencies on Red China and opium.

"The attached report ... answers in detail allegations that the PRC (Communist China) is flooding the western world with illicit opium," declares the memo from White House drug information director Richard Harkness, formerly an NBC newscaster.

"It is earnestly suggested that this factual report be used as a bible for all of us in replying to and countering any propaganda to the contrary. We must cut down this kind of arrant nonsense."

The "bible" included with the memo contends that a "persistent propaganda campaign ... is being promoted in this country by a number of groups who have consistently opposed normalization of relations between the U.S. and the PRC."

"Propaganda leaflets" against Red China contain a June 23, 1966, quote by Chou En-lai to the late President Gamal Nasser of Egypt. In it, Chou allegedly said that "we are planting the best kinds of opium especially for the American soldiers in Vietnam ..."

The White House report points out that "it was not until mid-1970 that drug abuse among U.S. servicemen in Vietnam reached serious proportions."

"Moreover, no evidence has yet been produced to indicate any attempt on the part of Peking to introduce opium or heroin into Vietnam."

The White House also maintains that China strictly controls opium production. Even in the old opium belts of Yunnan province, so states the briefing paper, there is no "significant illicit cross-border movements" to the outside world.

"The tight political control exercised by the (Red Chinese) government over its citizens has probably made the enforcement of these laws quite effective in most areas," the White House claims.

Footnote: Secret FBI files, meanwhile, accuse the "Weathermen" — the radical student group which claims responsibility for the recent bombing of the Pentagon — of taking their political ideology from "Chinese Communists."

The Weatherman dossier contains the full history of the group's split with the Students for a Democratic Society "in early 1969." The militants then "went underground in February, 1970."

Their objective, according to the FBI files, is the "creation of a radical, leftist, anarchist America." They hope to accomplish this by "guerrilla warfare and armed insurrection."

Personal Slants

By DOUG KNEIBERT

I reported last week that an author by the name of Richard Collier was seeking information about the great flu epidemic of 1918-19, especially first-hand accounts and recollections by Missourians.

Response came from Faris Zimmerman of Dun-Rovin Farm near Hughesville. Faris is still farming at the age of 77, proof that he lived to tell the tale.

At the time of the Spanish flu epidemic, Zimmerman, then 22, was working on the family farm about 4½ miles southwest of Slater. "I was working in the field one day and felt pretty good, but the next day I had a fever," he recalled. It was the beginning of a six-month ordeal that almost cost him his life.

Zimmerman was bedfast for three months with high fever and delirium. He developed double pneumonia, and shrank in weight from 200 to 100 pounds.

His life was saved by the appearance on the scene of Dr. B.F. Manning a Marshall physician and surgeon who had successfully performed operations to remove infectious sacs from the lungs of flu victims. Dr. Manning operated in Zimmerman's home. Shortly thereafter the fever broke.

"If it hadn't been for him I wouldn't be here," Zimmerman recalled. "he operated on about four in the vicinity, and I'm the only one that's here."

Zimmerman's attending physician, Dr. John R. Hall of Marshall, drove a double team out to the farm every day for 60 days to check on his patient.

For many others, death brought the only relief. "They just died like rats," Zimmerman said. "Most died within three of four days; it didn't take long to get them."

"My wife was in school at Marshall at the time, and one day she looked out at Ridge Park Cemetery, where four or five members of one family were buried the same day."

Eventually, Zimmerman gained in strength enough to be taken to Colorado for recuperation, at his doctor's suggestion. He made a full recovery, avoiding the tuberculosis that often followed on the heels of influenza.

With today's miracles of modern medicine, Zimmerman's tale sounds like something out of the Dark Ages. Mr. Collier should find it very interesting.

Missouri is a meaty state.

And Pettis County is no exception. It was reported Wednesday that the county ranks 16th in the state in cattle production.

Yesterday I received a copy of "Meatfacts 72," which shows Missouri ranking ninth in the nation in cash receipts from marketing of farm animals.

And in total number of cattle farms — 114,000 — Missouri ranks second only to Texas, which has 159,000.

Arrow Rock is all aflutter over the upcoming filming of the musical version of "Tom Sawyer," scheduled to begin at the historic river town in early July.

Several hundred mid-Missouri residents will appear in the movie as extras and in secondary rolls, according to the Missouri Tourism Commission.

Not the least consideration will be the greenbacks dropped by the Hollywood crew while here. Tourism Director James Pasley estimates they will leave behind about $100,000.

As Tom Sawyer would say, that ain't just spunk water.

Today's Thoughts

Rejoice, O young man in your youth, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth; walk in the ways of your heart and the sight of your eyes. But know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment. — Eccl. 11:9.

To fulfill the dream of one's youth, that is the best that can happen to a man. No worldly success can take the place of that. — Willa Cather, novelist.

Company Town Has Both Advantages and Disadvantages

By ALLEN NACHEMAN
Associated Press Writer

GILCHRIST, Ore. (AP)—The Franklin stove is crackling. The living room has a homewarmth about it as Bud Keown settles into an easy chair and hauls his daughter, Kelly, into his lap.

Outside, a late model pickup camper is parked in the driveway. A motorboat and trailer, a new car and two motorcycles are in the garage.

Less than 50 yards from the back door is a thick forest, laced by a rushing stream. The forest air is tangy with the scent of pine, the stillness broken only by the roar of an occasional log truck, a scampering deer, the whoosh of the wind through the towering Ponderosa pines.

Bud Keown takes stock of all this and smiles.

"You know," he says, "I got everything I want here."

It is precisely as Frank R. Gilchrist had intended.

In 1937, after the last tree was cut in Laurel, Miss., Gilchrist pulled up stakes and moved his timber company onto 85,000 acres of lush, south-central Oregon woodland.

Gilchrist was not about to build his new timber empire, as he had the old, on a foundation of itinerant mill hands with nothing but a pay envelope to hold them to a job, little to look forward to at day's end but a lonely shack in a desolate, snowbound labor camp.

Gilchrist built his mill. And he built a town.

His workers would have most everything they wanted right at the doorstep of the mill. A man could settle his family here, send his children to school, build his life and his future in Gilchrist. He would have no reason to leave.

Thirty-three years have proven Gilchrist essentially correct.

Bud Keown was born 33 years ago in a hospital in Bend, 50 miles to the north, then, as now, the location of the nearest medical care.

Keown went to work in the mill 14 years ago and married Mary Ann two years later.

He earns $9,600 a year plus overtime, which puts him on the high side of the average mill salary.

"Sure there are people in the cities making more," he says. "But I think they're missing something. If a guy is happy in what he's doing, why go looking for something else?"

As U.S. 97 snakes through the eastern foothills of the Oregon Cascades, Gilchrist materializes as a trim, model railroad village off to one side, with the sprawling mill complex on the other.

Model Community

This street and the restaurant — and everything else in Gilchrist, Ore. — are owned by the Gilchrist Timber Company. Restaurants and shops are leased to private businessmen. Gilchrist is a model community which measures up well to the ideal qualifications of small town America: it has no welfare, no unemployment, no traffic congestion and little pollution. Crime hardly exists.

'Franks' Receives Life Imprisonment

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — John "Johnny Franks" Frankoviglia, 56, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the murder of a grand jury witness in Kansas City. His attorney said he will appeal.

Frankoviglia was granted a request Thursday that he be kept in the St. Louis County jail instead of the state penitentiary during the appeal proceedings.

He was accused of hiring four men to kill Sol Landie, a scrap metal dealer who had appeared before a federal grand jury. Landie was scheduled to be a witness against several men who were indicted on gambling charges.

Open Meetings Support Grows

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Citizens' Lobby claims its open meetings campaign is picking up support throughout the state.

Carl M. Wilson, chairman of the nonpartisan group, said presidents of three major teachers organizations have endorsed the initiative petition drive to get more than 90,000 signatures to put an open meetings constitutional amendment on the ballot.

The petitions must be filed with the secretary of state by July 6.

Wilson said the teachers' groups with more than 20,000 members, were the St. Louis Suburban Teachers Association, the St. Louis Teachers Association and the Greater Kansas City Teachers Association.

Antiwar Phrase Disrupts Ballet

MOSCOW (AP) — Usually Tchaikovsky's classical ballet "Swan Lake" is performed without words.

Thursday night it got three, heard around the world.

"Via dal Vietnam!" Italian for "Get out of Vietnam!"

Or was it "Freedom for Vietnam" shouted in English?

In any case, the sentiment expressed was not unfamiliar to Richard Nixon as he sat with the president and premier of the Soviet Union in the gilt and red box once used by the Czars, when a woman in the balcony let go. Witnesses said the cry came from an Italian woman who lives in Moscow.

Shortly thereafter President Nikolai V. Podgorny was seen whispering into President Nixon's ear and Nixon nodded, smiled and shrugged in the manner of a man saying, "Well, that's the way it goes these days."

It was the first discordant public note since Nixon's arrival in Moscow. But on leaving the century-old Bolshoi Theater he thanked Podgorny and Kosygin for a "marvelous evening."

Shortly after the shout, the house lights went up and the President's box was floodlighted. One was told that it is normal for the lights to go on so that, just before the last act, the audience can applaud the conductor. This was done, but in the process, many spectators turned back toward the central box as they clapped.

A witness reported that shortly after the woman shouted, a number of Soviet security agent appeared in her area of the theater, the sixth and top balcony, somewhere to the President's left.

While the house lights were still on, this source said, the Soviet plainclothesmen did nothing. They just stood there. Then, about 10 minutes into the last act of "Swan Lake," which is basically a tale of good triumphing over evil, they summoned a Russian woman next to the shout for questioning. After a few moments, the Russian was allowed to return to her seat. Then, according to this source, Soviet security men came in for both women and "lifted them up like two packages" and took them out of their seats.

Later reports were that the woman accused of shouting in Italian denied that she shouted anything and was released by the police. There was no word about her Russian friend.

A titanic lightning bolt can be three miles long and streak the sky at 100 miles an hour.

Telephone Rate Request Heard

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A hearing on a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. request for a rate increase has been finished by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

After nearly three weeks of testimony, the company was given until June 20 to file briefs, and the PSC staff and others have until June 30 to reply. Oral arguments are set for July 6.

If the PSC has not reached a decision on the request by Aug. 29 the increase will take effect automatically. It is expected to produce $63.5 million additional revenue annually.

The PSC staff has recommended approval of a $30 million annual hike.

One of the last witnesses was R. R. Shockey, Bell's vice president for Missouri-Illinois operations, who told the commission telephone service will suffer if the company is not permitted to earn "a reasonable rate of return."

"Always Fresher"

Cpl. John Hall, head of the four-man state police office which, from Gilchrist, patrols a broad surrounding area of northern Klamath County.

Life in Gilchrist is slow and basic, easily sorted into small pigeon holes of do's and don'ts, goods and bads.

Keep up the car installments. Pay the gas, electric and grocery bills.

The company takes care of the water and sewers, collects the garbage, keeps the newly paved streets whistle clean and pays all the property taxes.

And it conveniently deducts your rent from your paycheck. Because if you live in Gilchrist, as do 125 of the 200 mill families, you live in a company-owned house.

The Keowns pay $45 a month for their comfortable four-bedroom house.

Rents range from $29 for a one-bedroom cottage to $85 for the most luxurious of the larger homes provided for supervisory personnel. They haven't been raised in 17 years.

The company is the landlord. It also owns and operates the movie theater, the gas station and the two-lane bowling alley.

There is no government here.

"We don't need any," says Bill Steers, who's worked here 16 years. "The company provides just about everything a government would—water, sewers, garbage collection, road maintenance—all free."

Cost to Gilchrist is somewhere around $40,000 a year.

Steers, 43, who holds a forestry degree from Michigan State University, is "wood boss," in charge of logging the company's 85,000 acres.

"I wouldn't live anywhere else," he says. "We go to Portland four or five times a year. We hit all the good restaurants and night clubs. We do plenty of window shopping. We love it. But after three days we can't wait to get the hell back here."

Greg Evans, 27, is a shop and forestry teacher at the Gilchrist School.

"I have done everything I can think of to instill in these kids the concept of quality in their work," he says of his students. "But dammit, I can't seem to get it across. They just don't seem to have the drive. I think it's this common idea, 'Let Frank (Gilchrist) do it.' They must get it at home from their parents."

"The ambition of so many of these kids is to graduate, get married, go across the road and work in the mill. That's all they want. The kids in my wife's third grade class are talking this way already," says Evans.

Are these students missing something?

"I don't think so," says Jerry Bennett, the school's 33-year-old principal. "True, they may be underexposed. But on the other hand, did you ever think city kids might be overexposed?"

Frank Gilchrist, 46, likes the town too, but for other reasons. "It's paid off," he says of his late father's idea. "We've been able to attract and hold a much higher caliber of worker. Fifty per cent of our employees have been with us more than 20 years."

Soviet Vessels In China Waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Russian missile-firing submarines have been reported in the South China Sea.

The E-class nuclear-powered subs were located some 700 miles east of the Vietnamese coast, Defense Department sources said. That would put them well out of range of most of the American warships patrolling off North Vietnam's mined ports.

But these Soviet submarines could sail close enough in about a day's time to bring their 200-mile-range Shaddock missiles to bear.

One of the 5,000-ton long-range Soviet submarines in the South China Sea carries six surface-to-surface missiles. The other three subs are somewhat more advanced models of the same class, armed with eight missiles each. All four subs also can fire torpedoes.

Russian submarines have been in that general position for days, between the Paracel Islands and the Philippines.

Like another group of at least six Soviet surface naval vessels to the southwest of them, the submarines appeared to be in a kind of watch-and-wait holding position.

U.S. officials appear unworried about the presence of the Russian submarines, a light cruiser, a guided-missile frigate and several destroyers in those waters.

So far, the Russians have made no military effort to challenge the U.S. mining of seven North Vietnamese ports and have diverted freighters and tankers bound for those ports when the mines were sown more than two weeks ago.

American officials have not dismissed the possibility that the Soviets might make some sort of naval demonstration off Vietnam after President Nixon ends his current visit to Russia.

Fight Stopped After Four

Smokin' Joe Butchers Stander

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier proved Thursday night he also deserved the nickname "Butcher" just as much as battered and vanquished challenger Ron Stander.

Unbeaten Frazier retained his world title by stopping a game, but bloodied Stander in a bout that will go into the record books as a fifth-round knockout. After an even first round, Frazier battered the 27-year-old unranked Stander, who was dubbed the "Bluffs Butcher," with a savage body attack and turned his face into a bloody mask. "He was surely a game puncher," offered the unscarred

Frazier after his fourth successful title defense. The victory boosted his pro record to 29-0 including 25 knockout victories.

Stander, a local favorite from nearby Council Bluffs, Iowa, came out aggressively and slugged with the champion on even terms in the opening round.

Referee Zach Clayton of Philadelphia, who summoned the doctor that stopped the fight, and the two judges called the first round even, but thereafter Frazier's speed told.

The champion began to score heavily to the body in the second round, bloodied Stander in the third and then reeled him a couple of times in a slugfest fourth round.

"Those cuts were getting deeper and deeper, there was no doubt about stopping it," said ring doctor Jack Lewis of Omaha. "There was no objection from the Stander corner."

Afterwards Lewis used 17 stitches to close four wounds on Stander's face and the challenger also suffered a broken nose.

"I am sorry I let a lot of people down," said the weeping Stander afterwards. His right eye was puffed shut.

"I did my best, but Frazier is the greatest," said Stander, who now is 23-2-1 in his pro career. It was the first time he was stopped by a knockout.

Frazier, 28, paid high praise to his beaten foe, who had been a 10-1 underdog.

"His strength surprised me," said Frazier, who seemed to work up only a slight sweat. "He was a very tough opponent. I thought he was stronger than George (Chuvale) or Oscar (Bonavena)."

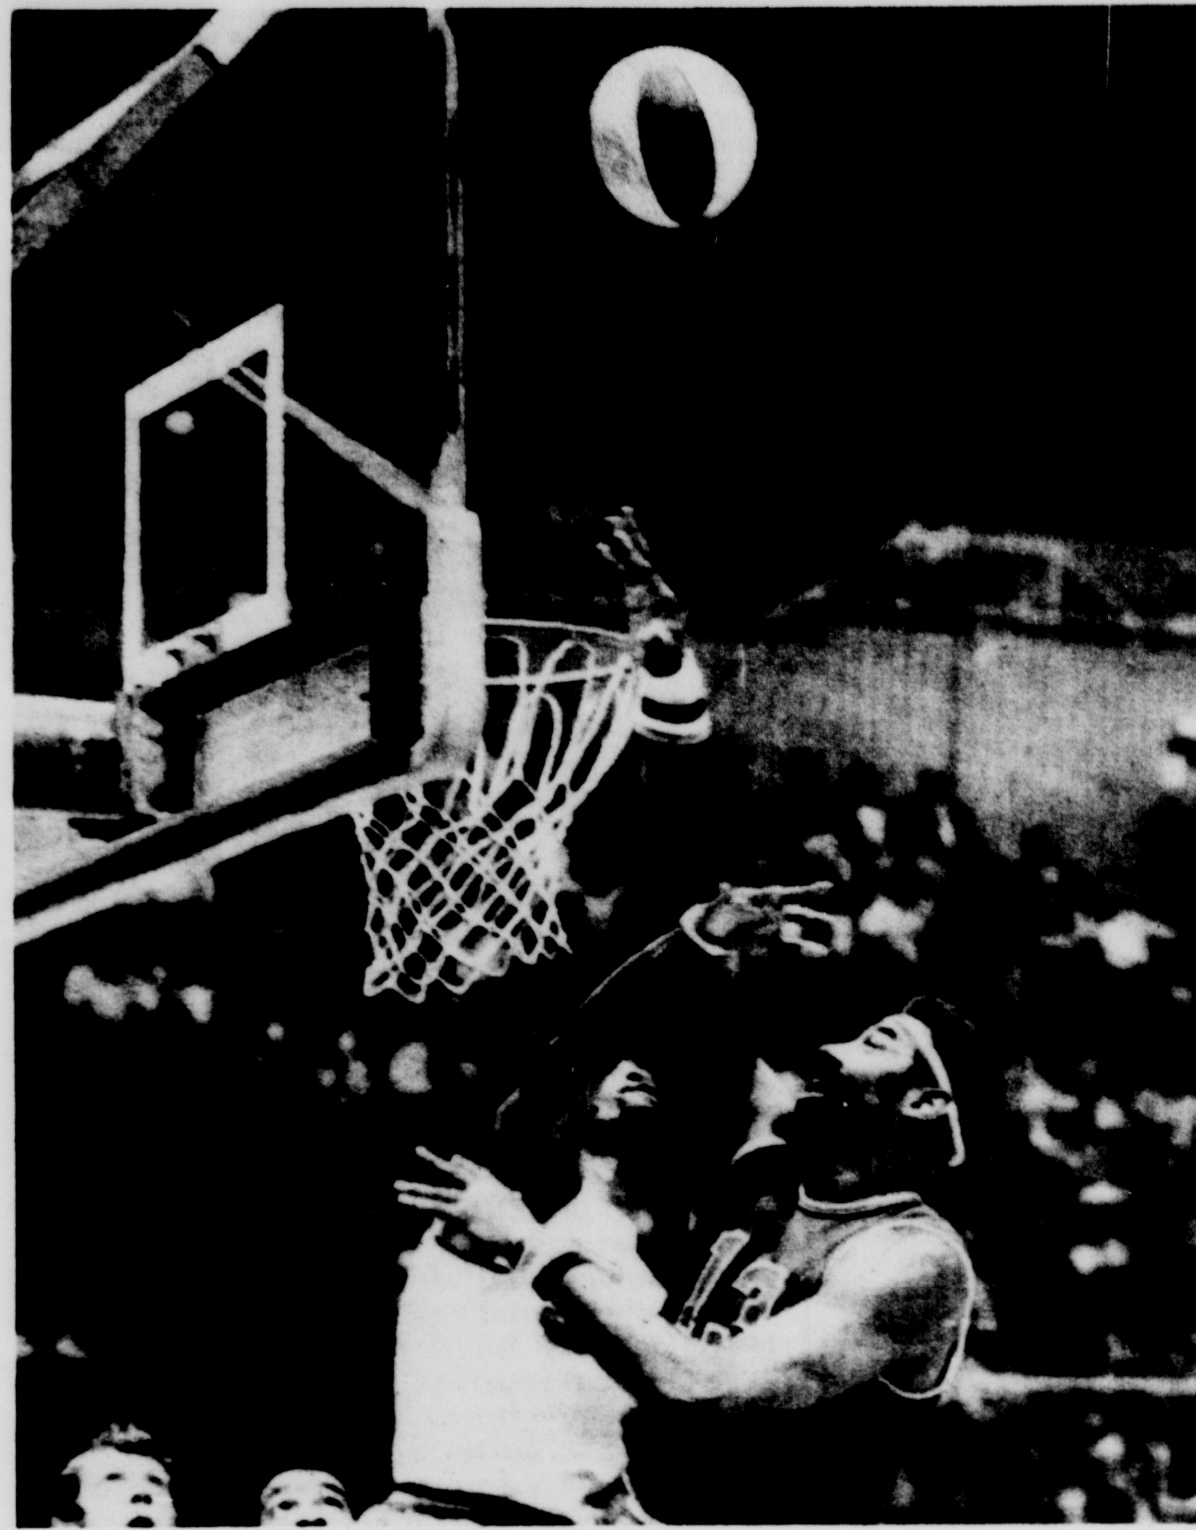

A crowd of 9,863 turned out for the first title fight in Nebraska's 105-year history and often urged Stander on with chants of "Go Big Ron."

The gross gate was $242,978.

Frazier was to receive 40 per cent of the live gate after taxes and Stander 20 per cent. The champion received a $150,000 guarantee from TVS which telecast the bout on a 150-station network.

Jo Quinn's Jobs Are Many at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — If anything—anything at all—goes wrong at the 500 mile race, Jo Quinn has to try to make it come out right.

But Jo combines a bawdy sense of humor—quips jump like popcorn from his pink-cheeked face—with an innate ability to handle crowds and crises.

As safety director of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, he is lord of the 555½-acre manor which once a year turns madhouse when an estimated 300,000 auto racing buffs swarm in for the 500.

The 68-year-old, balding, brawny official is in charge of rescuing drivers from wrecked machines, drying out drunks, running out girls peddling sex, corralling 4,537 high school bandmen and creating order out of chaos as enough people to populate Tucson, Ariz., converge for the U.S. Auto Club classic and the pre-race festivities.

Quinn has been at the job for 27 years. He works from a cluttered office in a little white clapboard building just inside the main gate, issuing parking stickers, signing letters, talking on the telephone to people like the lieutenant governor, a country school teacher and the accompanist for Jim Nabors, who will sing "Back Home Again in Indiana" before the race.

Two days before the race, Jo was at work in his sweltering office—no air conditioning, windows closed—without sweating while wearing a pocketed, red quilted, down-filled vest he affectionately calls his traveling secretary.

"I had four coronaries so I take blood thinners and my blood was already thin," he explained.

Quinn is assisted by a group of top aides he calls "the dirty dozen," 2,600 yellow-shirted officers known as the safety patrol, and a fire emergency unit.

Boys and girls through the age of 17 may enter any of the events. The age breakdown for the areas of competition are bantam (9 years of age and under), midget (10-11), junior (12-13), intermediate (14-15) and senior (16-17).

Fire Causes Damage At Truman Complex

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A fire damaged a power transformer and a switchboard early Thursday at the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex, under construction.

A power company spokesman estimated damage to the transformer at $7,000 and said it might take five to six weeks to get new equipment. The fire started in a switch, he said.

Yet his chief concern when the race starts at 11 a.m. EST Saturday will be the drivers' safety.

owners and Commissioner Jack Dolph had endorsed the game, split a total of $17,000.

"I wasn't really bothered by the threat, but apparently some players were," said Lanier, voted the game's Most Valuable Player after sparking the NBA's comeback with 15 points and seven rebounds.

Of the original group picked to represent the NBA, there were three defections—Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the league's Most Valuable Player and leading scorer each of the past two seasons; and All-Star guards Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers and Walt Frazier of the Knicks.

Frazier was a surprise absentee. He did not even inform game officials that he would not play.

"The fans got their money's worth," said former Lakers' star Elgin Baylor, who made his coaching debut as head of the NBA club. "It was a good show."

Angels' Skid Continues

Royals Beef Up at Big A

ANAHEIM (AP) — It has been a down year in Orange County.

Attendance is down, the team is down and the general manager is downcast.

Only 4,032 patrons came to Anaheim Stadium Thursday night to watch the California Angels inaugurate an eight-game home stand. Those who did saw the Angels drop a 5-2 verdict to Kansas City's Royals. It was California's sixth loss in seven games and pushed the Angels ten games under .500 and ten games behind the Chicago White Sox, divisional leaders in the American League West.

The mini-crowd was the smallest ever at Anaheim Stadium, built in 1966.

Rudy May, the Angel starter Thursday night who is now 0-4, contributed to his own downfall by committing two errors on one play in the first inning, leading to a pair of unearned Kansas City runs.

May tumbled Freddie Patek's leadoff grounder and then threw the ball away with Patek taking second. Patek scored on a double by Richie Scheinblum and the latter scored on a single by Cookie Rojas.

Paul Schaal's first home run of the season made it 3-0 in the second and winning pitcher Paul Splittorff, 4-3, drove in an unearned run with a ground ball in the seventh. The run was put in scoring position on a passed ball charged to Angel catcher Art Kusner.

KC got its final run against Eddie Fisher in the ninth on a Schaal single, two walks and Patek's sacrifice fly.

May left after five innings. It was his fifth start of the season and he has worked a total of 22 and one-third innings in that capacity. He has yet to see his teammates score him a run.

California scored its first run in the sixth on a Sandy Alomar double and Splittorff's wild pitch. The Angels got their final tally and chased the Kansas City starter in the ninth when Ken Berry walked, Andy Kosco doubled and Ken McMullen singled.

Roger Nelson saved it for Splittorff.

Gibson Wins First Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I didn't figure I was going to go all year without winning," said two-time Cy Young Award recipient Bob Gibson.

Gibson, aging but tough, thus experienced no special elation Thursday in a seven-hit performance derailed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 for the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I feel the same as I always do," explained the 36-year-old right-hander, whose victory was his first after five losses. "When I win, I love it; when I lose, I'm mad."

Gibson, his fast ball zipping, struck out 10 for a Cards staff high and walked none in halting a Pirates' victory string at nine.

Beaten three times by one run in the young season, the 6-foot-1, 195-pound craftsman drew offensive support from Ted Sizemore's first homer and Dal Maxvill's key RBI single.

Gibson yielded five Pirates hits the first four innings, including Al Oliver's run-scoring single, then served only a homer to Richie Hebner in the sixth and a single to Dave Cash in the eighth.

Included among the strikeouts were three of Hebner, who waved twice at fast balls and once at a curve in addition to tagging a slider.

Hebner's blow into the right field seats pulled Pittsburgh to 3-2, but the Cards countered with Ted Simmons' single, an error by Gene Alley and Maxvill's hit for a run in the bottom of the inning.

"My control was a little better, but I've been throwing the same way the last four or five games," Gibson insisted. "I just didn't happen to win."

While Gibson was righting himself from his poorest start in the majors, the Pirates' Dock Ellis (5-2) had a five-game winning streak derailed. Fleet Lou Brock opened the first and third innings with singles, stole second each time and scored on a hit and a double play.

Cash, extending a hitting streak to 18 games, scored after doubling for the Pirates in the third, but Sizemore's homer off an Ellis breaking pitch in the fifth established a 3-1 Cards lead.

"He was tough when he had to be," said Pirates manager Bill Virdon in assessing Gibson, whom Pittsburgh beat 4-1 previously.

"He's been pitching well," Virdon added. "I thought he pitched well at our place, even though he lost."

Hard-luck Pitchers Win First Contests

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON,
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Gibson has won 207 major league games, Marty Pattin 40 and Skip Lockwood 16, but they all have one thing in common—each picked up his first 1972 victory Thursday.

"I didn't figure I was going to go all season without winning," said Gibson, 1-5, after scattering seven hits as the St. Louis Cardinals stopped Pittsburgh's nine-game winning streak 4-2.

"That takes the pressure off," said Pattin, 1-5, who allowed only four hits, struck out nine and was aided by a triple play in pitching the Boston Red Sox over Baltimore 2-1.

"They popped up on good pitches and bad," said Lockwood, 1-4, who hurled a six-hitter and outdueled Detroit's Mickey Lolich as the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Tigers 2-0.

In Thursday's only other games, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2 on Willie Mays' 14th-inning single, the New York Yankees shaded Cleveland 2-0, Minnesota nipped Texas 6-5 and Kansas City beat California 5-2.

Gibson's fast ball was in good form and he struck out 10 Pirates, getting Richie Hebner three times although the Pittsburgh third baseman homered in the sixth. By then, Gibson had a 3-1 lead with Ted Sizemore belting his first home run of the season and Lou Brock scoring twice—in the first on Matty Alou's single and in the third on a double play grounder.

Pattin fell behind the Orioles 1-0 in the second inning when Don Baylor cracked his fifth home run. But the Red Sox tied it quickly in the third on Tommy Harper's double and Luis Aparicio's single off Pat Dobson. Aparicio then came around with the winning run on a stolen base, flying ball and Ellie Hendricks' passed ball.

"It's tough every time you go out there," sighed Pattin. "You just have to cope with it, concentrate, relax and throw the way you know how. I've been down before and it's no fun. I'll tell you that."

What was fun was the triple play, which took Pattin out of trouble in the fourth inning. With runners at first and second, Hendricks lined to first baseman Duane Josephson, who stepped on the bag for the second out and threw to shortstop Aparicio to nail Terry Crowley trying to get back to second.

The Brewers struck suddenly in the fourth inning against Lolich, one of two eight-game winners in the majors. Mike Ferraro opened with a double, one of his three hits, and Ellie Rodriguez slammed his first home run of the season into the upper left field stands at Tiger Stadium.

Lockwood didn't walk anyone in his shutout and manager Dave Bristol called it "definitely the best game he's pitched since he's been here."

The contest was enlivened by a brief scrap in the ninth inning after Milwaukee's Billy Conigliaro bunted and Detroit reliever Phil Meeler ran into him while making the tag on a close play at first base. Conigliaro was ejected.

Mays' game-winning two-out single broke the Mets' two-game losing streak and was the 41-year-old super star's third decisive hit since returning to New York two weeks ago.

Chicago's Bill Hands was staked to a two-run lead in the sixth on Carmen Fanzone's double. But he developed a blister on his pitching hand and the Mets tied it against Tom Phoebus on Duffy Dyer's homer in the eighth and Rusty Staub's double and Cleon Jones' single in the ninth.

Fritz Peterson, who lost his first six starts made it two triumphs in a row by blanking Cleveland on seven hits as the Yankees won for the eighth time in their last 11 games. They scored off Dick Tidrow in the sixth inning when Bobby Murcer singled and Roy White homered.

Rod Carew squeezed home Cesar Tovar, who had doubled and moved to third on Danny Thompson's sacrifice, with the winning run in the seventh inning as the Twins edged the Rangers, who had beaten them four straight in Texas over the weekend.

Lenny Randle's homer helped the Rangers to a 3-0 lead against Jim Perry but the Twins chased Pete Broberg and took a 5-3 lead in the sixth, with Bobby Darwin, Eric Soderholm and Steve Braun delivering run-scoring hits.

Filion Top Athlete

OTTAWA (AP) — Herve Filion of Angers, Que., Thursday was named the outstanding French-Canadian athlete of 1971.

Driver of a world record 543 harness racing winners last year, Filion won the Gil O. Julien award. Two other finalists in the poll of Ottawa-Hull sports writers and broadcasters were hockey center Jean Rattelle of The New York Rangers and Yvon Duhamel, champion motocyclist from Montreal.

Hibbard Could Push Favorites

Jerry Blundy may be the hottest thing in the International Motor Contest Association's sprint car division, but he, along with defending Jaycees' Memorial Classic champion Ray Lee

Goodwin and the rest of the IMCA regulars could well receive a stiff challenge from Roy Hibbard, Marshall.

Hibbard is currently the hottest thing in area sprint circles, with his three feature victories in his Chevy-powered H-W sprinter out of Mexico.

The veteran Marshall driver won only $55 of the IMCA's money last year and picked up a mere total of 20 points. That tied him for 146th in the IMCA's 1971 standings, which is dead last. He competed with the IMCA only during the 1971 Missouri State Fair.

But you can bet that Hibbard will be shooting for the top prize of $600 in the Sedalia Jaycees-IMCA sprint car feature in Sunday's 12th-Annual Memorial Classic at the Fairgrounds.

Hibbard has wired together two feature wins at Capital Speedway, Holts Summit, on May 13 and May 20. On May 21, he copped the super-sprint feature at the opening night of racing at the Saline County

And the Race is On...

A brief fight between Detroit relief pitcher Phil Meeler and Milwaukee outfielder Bill Conigliaro brought out both benches in the ninth inning of the Tigers-Brewers' contest Thursday afternoon in Detroit. Conigliaro and Meeler traded blows when Meeler picked up Conigliaro's short grounder on the foul line and tagged him as he was returning to the plate, thinking it had rolled foul. The Brewers won, 2-0. (UPI)

1972 Fair Schedule

Add Night Cycle Race

Two motorcycle races, one of which is scheduled under the lights, along with a revised International Motor Contest Association stock and sprint car format, highlight this year's Missouri State Fair, according to the 1972 premium book, just released by State Fair Secretary W. C. Askew.

For the first time in Missouri State Fair history, the American Motorcycle Association will hold a $3,000 purse race under the lights, Aug. 27 on the half-mile track.

The AMA, who returns to sanction the races after a one-year absence, also has a $6,700 racing program that same morning.

The opening race of the 1972 Fair will find the sprint cars tangling on the half, Aug. 19. Following that race, at 8 p.m., the Missouri State Fair Class A (A-modifieds) Open House championship is scheduled.

In past years, the A-modifieds and the B-modifieds have been held on the same night, with the A-modifieds returning the following week for senior division championship.

This is the first time in Missouri State Fair history that the senior modified state championship has been open to cars owned or driven by persons outside the state.

The opening Sunday of this year's Fair, Aug. 20, the IMCA stock cars will be featured in a Sandwiched in between the two motorcycle shows is the IMCA's annual Missouri Futurity for sprint cars on the mile dirt track. Another $100 has been added to the Futurity purse, making this year's payoff $6,200.

The Missouri International for stock cars, which has in past years been the biggest drawing card of any auto racing event at the Fairgrounds, is scheduled for Aug. 26. That race will carry a $6,100 total purse. Under the lights Aug. 26, the stocks will meet in a night race on the half-mile dirt oval.

The B-modifieds will have their own separate night, according to the schedule. The modified sportsman stock car championship (B-modifieds) race will begin with the first of five heat races at 8 p.m. on Aug. 25.

NFL Has Suffered Says Pete Rozelle

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's image has been hurt by a now-disbanded federal grand jury in Cleveland, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Thursday. He also said the league had no recourse in the situation.

The grand jury investigated the sport for 18 months but was dismissed without issuing any indictments. Another panel could be selected for further work but it does not seem likely at this time, legal sources in Cleveland said.

Rozelle said the proceedings attracted national headlines with witnesses "highly suspect in credibility and motive."

"The league has suffered tremendously because from those proceedings have come distortions and innuendos that have had a damaging effect," he said.

Rozelle would not say how the league had learned of the grand jury's dismissal, which was not publicly revealed until the commissioner's announcement at the end of the NFL meetings.

In other actions, the NFL owners:

—Selected Kansas City as the site of the 1974 AFC-NFC Pro Bowl games.

—Extended through 1974 its contract with the Chicago All-Star Game.

—Re-elected for two-year terms George Halas of Chicago and Lamar Hunt of Kansas City as president of the National and American Conferences, respectively.

Team Tourney at Walnut Hills

Scores to compute a handicap for Saturday and Sunday's Memorial Day Weekend Men's Team Tournament at Walnut Hills Country Club must be turned in to club professional Bob McFerren before those entered in the tourney tee off for Saturday's 18-hole opening round.

Three scores are needed to figure a handicap, if none has yet been computed.

Contestants may play anytime Saturday with whomever they wish, but the score must be attested. The Saturday best ball scores will be computed with full handicap.

Sunday's competition will find the team's total scores minus their combined handicaps being used to compute their final scores. Entrants will play in their respective pairs Sunday, with the highest scores of the day before going off the tee first.

The first players in Sunday's competition are scheduled to go off the tee at 12:30 p.m.

McFerren also announced that plans are being finalized for a Men's Twilight Golf League. Opening competition in the league is scheduled to start at 5 p.m. June 1.

Contestants will play nine holes, with their final score determined by subtracting one-half of their established handicap. Prizes will be awarded by blind draw.

In addition, McFerren said that a "horse race" will be held during the weekly men's league. It will be limited to the first 10 who sign up. Competition on the front nine will find one player being eliminated on each hole. Ties will be determined by the closest to the pin in a "chip on." The farthest out in each "chip on" will be eliminated.

Each entrant will pay a $5 entry fee. The winner will receive $30 worth of merchandise, while the runner-up will be awarded $20 worth of merchandise.

SFCC Signs 6-7 Carthage Player

Bill Barton, head basketball coach at State Fair Community College, has announced the signing of Lewis Busch, an All-State Class L basketball player from Carthage, Mo. High School.

Busch, a 6-7 postman for the Tigers during the 1971-72 campaign, led Carthage to fourth place in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's state basketball finals.

He comes to SFCC with three-year letterman honors at Carthage, as well as all-conference, all-Ozark and all-district awards.

Busch averaged 14 points per game and hauled in rebounds at the rate of 13.4 per contest during his senior year under head coach Dwight Arner.

An outstanding defensive player, Barton said, "... we are very pleased with Busch's decision... his defensive ability, along with his offensive output and his rebounding ability will be tremendous assets for us."

Busch is the son of Mrs. Mary Frances Busch, Carthage.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The elimination play is one of the nicest to teach. It usually is rather difficult, but pupils just love to see how it works. Today's hand is given to advanced pupils by Barbara Brier of Miami.

Barbara currently holds the world's mixed pair championship with Walde-mar von Zedtwitz.

Hearts are led three times. South ruffs high and pulls trumps with two leads. This sets the stage for a simple elimination play. The ace and king of clubs are played and the last club is ruffed, as is dummy's last heart.

This eliminates everything but diamonds and declarer leads a low one toward dummy with every intention of playing low and sticking East in. Unfortunately for this plan, if West just plays the eight-spot, East will be able to play the four and won't be in trouble.

It is up to declarer to see a better way to force East to lead a diamond.

The play goes just the same until the last heart is led. At this point, instead of ruffing, South discards a diamond. East is on lead and must either lead from his king of diamonds or play his last heart to allow South to discard another diamond while ruffing in dummy.

Wouldn't South look silly if West showed up with the diamond king? Yes he would, but East really needed that king for his opening bid.

Nixon Opposes Surge in Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon opposes seeking a tax increase next year if he is re-elected, but doesn't rule out one as a substitute for the local property tax, the White House says.

Instead, presidential assistant John Ehrlichman told reporters Thursday, Nixon will concentrate on trying to save money through cutting out unproductive federal programs and spending.

He said the administration "is opposed to any increase in federal taxation in the foreseeable future."

By that, Ehrlichman said, he means next year. "I can't enter a warranty over periods over which I have no control or interest."

He added that it is fair to say the fiscal 1974 budget sent to Congress early next year will not contain a tax-increase request—if Nixon is re-elected.

As for a tax-increase substitute for the property tax, Ehrlichman said a value-added tax is a possibility, but added there are alternatives, such as raising the income tax or excise taxes.

The value-added tax, essentially a national sales tax, has been mentioned frequently as a way of lightening the homeowners' burden of financing public education.

Ehrlichman's news conference turned out to be one of three administration declarations during the day against tax proposals and against a report by the Brookings Institution, a private organization which studies federal programs.

The Brookings study said that either a tax increase or a cut-back in federal programs, or both, will be inevitable if the government undertakes any new big programs.

Ehrlichman said he read that to mean a tax increase is inevitable no matter who is elected president.

He said the Brookings report failed to focus enough on cutting federal spending to achieve economy and "we don't think that alternative can so easily be laid aside."

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally criticized the Brookings study in a meeting with Texas reporters and disagreed

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Protests against the scheduled closing of the Federal Aviation Administration flight service station at Kirksville's airport were presented to FAA officials Thursday by city officials and area pilots.

Russell Roberts, Kirksville attorney, said FAA reports leading to the closing of the station were statistically invalid.

with any suggestion that a tax increase is inevitable.

On Capitol Hill, the man who will replace Connally as Treasury secretary, Budget Director George P. Shultz, said that before anything is done about higher taxes, "We must do everything we can to bring outlays under control."

Personal Diet Brings Results

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have been reading various articles on women with weight problems. I am in my 50s and six months ago I weighed 215 pounds. I thought nothing of it and just kept right on eating. An accident caused me to go to the doctor and he asked me in a gentle way to try eating half of what I was eating, along with giving up sweets and starches. I made up my own diet which the doctor checked.

My diet consisted of an abundance of will power pills, along with chicken, tuna, baked fish, roast and steak and a stuffed green pepper now and then, with such vegetables as broccoli, cauliflower, green beans, lettuce, salad and also a lot of cottage cheese. I drank tomato juice for breakfast, coffee, tea, cream of wheat, and once in a while two strips of bacon fried crisp.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your nice letter. You are living proof that one of the principles in losing weight is reducing calories and a good way for a person to do this is indeed to just decrease the quantity of everything they have been eating. The diet you describe above has certain important features. It contains quite a bit of protein from chicken, tuna, baked fish and other items that you mentioned.

Any diet, even for losing weight, should include a significant amount of vegetables, which you have described. These provide bulk and keep the person satisfied. Cottage cheese is excellent. For losing weight I usually recommend uncreamed or low-fat cottage cheese. Following such a sensible diet consistently will cause weight loss.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like to ask you about catsup. My two sons and one of the wives and a grandson are all crazy about it. They have catsup on any meal, every day, even on fried eggs. I have cautioned my sons that catsup might not be good for their health but I would like to hear what you say about it.

Dear Reader—There is nothing wrong with catsup, except for those people who cannot tolerate spicy foods or have to eliminate salt from their diet because of medical problems. Catsup after all is mostly tomatoes and spices. Catsup has gone a long way to rescue a lot of unpalatable meals. According to news stories one of the nation's leading citizens likes the combination of cottage cheese and catsup.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Pollution Decision Coming

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has come within a hair's breadth of halting the nation's main attack on air pollution, but postponed his decision for at least a week.

Four environment groups filed suit Wednesday morning against the Environmental Protection Agency, seeking a court order to block federal approval of state plans for combating air pollution.

The environmentalists said EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus was about to approve state plans which would allow the soiling of air that is now clean.

Within hours after the suit was filed, U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt held a hearing to decide whether he should immediately block action by Ruckelshaus pending a broader review of the legal issues.

Pratt at first scheduled a hearing on the legal issues for June 2, and repeatedly asked government attorneys if they could promise that Ruckelshaus would withhold action that long.

At one point, Pratt said, "If you give me assurance that no action will be taken before a week from Friday, I will not issue the temporary restraining order." But the government lawyers said Ruckelshaus was required by law to act before then.

Pratt rescheduled the further hearing for next Tuesday morning, one day before Ruckelshaus's own decision deadline, and denied a temporary restraining order "for the time being."

The environmentalists said approval of any state plans permitting degradation of clean air would violate national air-quality laws.

Under such a decision, Ruckelshaus might be able to approve some state plans or even parts of all the plans. The law requires him to approve or disapprove them by next Wednesday.

The suit was argued by attorney Bruce J. Terris representing the Sierra Club, the Metropolitan Washington Coalition for Clean Air, the New Mexico Citizens for Clean Air and Water, Inc., and the Clean Air Council of San Diego County.

Challenge Pathway Prepared

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court judge apparently has paved the way for a group of insurgent Democrats to challenge the seats of 59 uncommitted delegates to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Judge Frank McGarr of U.S. District Court extended to June 5 a court injunction barring the elected delegates-including Mayor Richard J. Daley and other top Democrats—from attempting to block the challenge by the 10 dissidents.

McGarr's ruling Thursday extended the injunction past the date for the challenge hearings. An injunction was originally issued to May 28 to cover the hearings scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

But a Washington attorney, designated hearing officer by the acting chairman of the Credentials Committee which rules on delegate seating, successively postponed the hearings to May 30, May 31 and June 1.

The challengers, including four Chicago aldermen and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of Operation PUSH, contended Mayor Daley's organization violated party reform rules by slating and supporting delegates in improper ways. They also claim the delegates do not include a proportionate share of blacks, women and young people.

Mother's Day Tragedy Is Reminder For Memorial Day Safety

Editor's Note: Bob Sheue, wire editor on The Democrat, witnessed a tragic accident on South Highway 65 May 14, which claimed four lives. In the interest of encouraging caution on our highways, here is his account.

"Oh God," he moaned, "I'm dying, I'm dying."
The man was helplessly pinned upsidedown in the crushed, overturned wreckage of the gray truck cab. Flailing his arms about him in a semi-delirious state, he reached upwards in an attempt to free his legs which had been rudely jammed between the dashboard and the mangled cab top.
But Hanley Clements' twisting efforts to free himself only aggravated his painful situation. "My legs are killing me," he gasped, "I'm dying, I'm dying."

One man had already checked on Clements through the shattered truck windshield, before fixing his attention beyond the capsized wreckage to the north. A second man was crouched on the ground, reassuring the injured truck driver in low tones. "You'll be all right," he said, "you'll be okay."
Clements continued to try to free himself. "The best thing you can do sir," I said as I bent over to look inside the wreckage to see if I could help, "is to keep as still as you can." The other man placed a pillow someone had brought under Clements' head. "Just rest easy," he said.

I straightened and looked behind me to the south to see if someone was going to call an ambulance. The traffic which normally clogs South Highway 65 on weekends was now backed up almost as far as I could see. Several cars were making U-turns in the road and driving south to summon help at Lincoln.
Walking along the shoulder of the highway I gazed around the truck to the north and noticed a long line of traffic along the southbound lane. Several people were out of their cars, standing and gazing on the tragedy before them on the highway. Few rushed to the three bodies on the road. Their condition was obvious.
"I think these two are dead," one man announced as he moved toward a third, larger form on the road. I stared at the three bodies. Two were children, sprawled strangely on the pavement. The third was their mother, pronounced dead on arrival at Bothwell Hospital. The Highway Patrol said later all three died instantly.

I didn't notice the wreckage of the pickup truck in which they were riding. At first glance I received the impression they might have been walking along the road since the bodies seemed curiously alone in their stillness. I learned later their pickup truck had been literally torn apart in the head-on collision with Clements' unit, loaded with hogs. The driver of the pickup, the father and husband of the forms on the road, died a short time later at Bothwell.
They were from Kansas City, Kan., and their names were Wilbur Willard, 47, his wife, Rose, 44, and their two daughters, Sharon, 14, and Rhonda, 11.

Witnesses to the north said the Willard truck appeared out of control on the wrong side of the road. From my vantage point, four cars back from the wreck in a line of Mother's Day traffic, I could see only the ominous form of the tractor-trailer unit as it slid sideways along the highway and overturned as if in slow motion at a curve in the road several miles north of Lincoln. The car leading the knot of traffic I was in could not escape ramming the top of the truck cab as it fell only feet before it in the road and skidded onto the shoulder. The driver of that car was miraculously unhurt.

There was little that could be done. No one could help Clements from his truck without the aid of a wrecker to pry the top of the cab. Willard was equally beyond aid without ambulance attendants to assist.
Of the five persons involved in the head-on collision, only one survives. Hanley Clements, 59, of Pocahontas, Ark., who suffered multiple injuries and fractures is resting in improved condition at Bothwell Hospital, where he has been a patient since that Sunday afternoon, May 14.
And for the Wilbur Willard family, who may have been visiting relatives or taking a Mother's Day trip to the lake, they became four more names on the tragically long list of Americans killed on our highways each year.

Summit Talks Snagged On Trade, Arms Matters

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon's summit talks snagged Thursday on difficult trade negotiations, and an apparent hitch developed in the drive to sign a historic accord to curb the nuclear arms race.
The President took a night off to go to the ballet, where he heard a woman shout in Italian, "Via dal Vietnam"—Get out of Vietnam. The protest against Nixon's war policy sounded through the Bolshoi Theater between acts as he sat with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin for a performance of "Swan Lake."

An eyewitness said the protester was removed from the theater by Soviet security agents. Later reports said the woman was released after denying any part in the incident.
The summit talks produced a fifth prearranged agreement— this one to prevent incidents involving the two nations' warships on the high seas.

Before going through a rainy spring night to the ballet, the American chief executive held his seventh session with Soviet leaders. They talked for two hours about complex trade issues, and sources said economic differences may not be fully resolved during the week-long summit.
There were signs also that hopes were dashed for a Friday signing of the two-step accord to limit strategic weapon stockpiles.

Although sources said the missile agreement would be signed before the summit ended, chief U.S. negotiator Gerard Smith delayed his flight from Helsinki to Moscow. Arms conference sources in Helsinki indicated the delay was due to "some little sticky last-minute problem."
The top Kremlin leader, Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, did not participate in Thursday talks with Nixon on trade, nor did he go to the ballet where the Vietnam protest was shouted by an unidentified female.
The shout, in the semidarkened theater before the final act, was the first public incident during the President's visit reflecting disapproval of his policies. Some English members of the audience mistook the Italian phrase for the English words, "Freedom for Vietnam."

No Tax Increases

John D. Ehrlichman, President Nixon's chief adviser on domestic affairs, told a news conference Thursday that Nixon planned no tax increases in the foreseeable future and would keep expenditures in line by cutting back on government operation costs. He was responding to a report by the Brookings Institution which said that defense and social programs were proliferating at such a rapid pace that the government has run out of money to pay for them.

Enemy Forces Inside Kontum

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese troops slipped inside Kontum for the first time Thursday, and enemy gunners launched an intense artillery attack, possibly signaling an all-out assault on the provincial capital in the central highlands.
Informed sources said the handful of civilian American advisers still in Kontum were flown out in late afternoon. Advisers to South Vietnamese military units in the city apparently stayed behind.
At the same time, South Vietnamese marines repulsed an attack on the northern front above the old imperial city of Hue as other marines returning from a raid into enemy-held Quang Tri Province brought out about 1,800 refugees.

On the southern front, where the government appeared on the verge of a major victory a week ago, a relief column trying to reach the beleaguered provincial capital of An Loc battled enemy forces throughout the day. Delayed reports said the government troops had suffered as many as 200 casualties since their planned final push to break the 49-day-old siege bogged down along Highway 13.
Associated Press correspondent David J. Paine reported from the highlands that a well-placed American source said it appeared the North Vietnamese were about to launch a full-scale attack on Kontum. Allied officers have said repeatedly that the city of more than 25,000 is a key target of the eight-week-old North Vietnamese offensive.

The outer defense lines around Kontum have been probed daily for a week, but Thursday was the first time that enemy troops had penetrated the city.
On the northern front, Associated Press correspondent Mort Rosenblum reported that South Vietnamese marines drove back enemy attackers who got to within 300 yards of a command post in a Roman Catholic church in the village of My Chanh. The village is on the south side of the My Chanh River, which marks the government's northernmost defense line, 20 miles above Hue.
A marine raid into Quang Tri Province, which fell to the North Vietnamese May 1, fell short of its objective of clearing a North Vietnamese regiment from the "Street Without Joy" but demonstrated the marines' offensive capability, said one senior American military adviser.

Two marine battalions that landed by helicopter and amphibious landing craft four or five miles behind enemy lines Wednesday returned to government-held territory Thursday, bringing about 1,800 refugees with them.

Dowd Visits Sedalia On Campaign Sweep

Ed Dowd, St. Louis, visited Sedalia Thursday as part of a sweep through Western Missouri in his quest for the Democratic nomination for governor.
Dowd said the polls show him to be the top contender for the Democratic nomination, adding, "We expect to run first in outstate Missouri."
The candidate said he would also win heavily in St. Louis and its suburbs, and expects to finish at least a close second in Kansas City.
Dowd called the top issue facing Missourians that of governmental reorganization. He said adoption of the "Little Hoover" recommendations would make state government more "streamlined" and would also save money. He estimated the figure at up to $75 million a year.
This, in combination with natural economic growth, would give the state enough money to undertake needed programs without a tax increase, Dowd said.

"I don't think the Democratic party has measured up to what the people can expect," the candidate said. He called for more aid to education, capital improvements, additional help and programs for the elderly and for the retarded.
While opposing a tax increase, Dowd said he also did not support the so-called "Blackwell amendment," which would require a vote of the people on each tax hike. He said this would be very expensive, and called it a way of "passing the buck."
On other issues, Dowd said state funds should be deposited in banks throughout the state without regard to politics, and should earn some interest. He also said he favored a proposed amendment that would require open meetings of public bodies and reveal how legislators vote in committee.
Dowd said he saw "constitutional

Coal Mine Mishap Kills Calhoun Man

CALHOUN — Federal inspectors concluded a day of investigations at the Tebo Mine here Thursday in a probe of the death of a coal miner who was fatally struck Wednesday by the bucket of a large power shovel in the mine. The result of the investigation is not known.

William Hardy, 64, Calhoun, was in his fourteenth year at the mine, a subsidiary of Peabody Coal Co., when he was crushed by the huge shovel. A co-worker, Robert Hutson, 41, Clinton, who was injured in the mishap, told The Democrat-Capital from his bed in Golden Valley Hospital, Clinton, what he remembered of the incident:
"God, all I really remember was we were working on it (the shovel) and I heard a man holler 'run!'"
Hutson said he ran away from the shovel while Hardy and another miner, Mike Mothersbaugh, Windsor, ran toward the shovel. Mothersbaugh "got under the shovel," Hutson said, but Hardy was struck by the shovel.
Henry County Coroner Dr. Richard H. King told The Democrat-Capital, "death was instantaneous." He stated he was convinced Hardy's death was "obviously accidental."
Hutson, operator of the machine, said the shovel "was just sitting there," completely turned off, with "no one in the control room."
King said he learned a cable broke causing the bucket, large enough to hold a small car, to fall the 30 feet from the boom of the earth mover to the ground.
Eugene Womble, mine superintendent, shied from releasing information surrounding the accident. "As yet," he said, "we haven't got the information to give out." He explained the federal

Says Family Income Below Average Here

The average family income in Pettis County in 1969 was more than $2,000 below the national average, and the per capita income in the county was below the U.S. average by almost the same amount, a report from the Census Bureau Thursday revealed.
The report said the average Pettis County family earned $7,338 in 1969, compared to $8,914 in the state and $9,433 in the U.S. Per capita income in Pettis County was set at $2,539, compared to the U.S. average of $4,138.
An interesting statistic in the report was that 0.5 per cent of the county's 2,539 residents were foreign born. Another 3.5 per cent were born in the county, but had one or both parents of foreign birth.

The county's labor force, from age 16 on up, included 74.2 per cent men and 36.6 per cent women. Among the employed, 39.4 per cent were holding "white collar jobs" and 11.6 per cent were in government service, the report said.
Another interesting aspect of the study was that half of the county's female population of 25 years of age and above included high school graduates. A lower number of men in the same age group, or 48.4 per cent, had graduated from high school, it was learned. At the time of the survey, 8,028 of the county's population between 3 to 34 years old was enrolled in school.
The head count also revealed that "among the county's 31,747 inhabitants age 5 and over in 1970, 2,915 were living in a different county within the state in 1965 and 2,025 in a different state." There was no indication how many persons had moved out of the county during this same period.
About 36.8 per cent of the married women with husbands "present" were included in the county's labor force, and 30.1 of these had children 6 years old or younger, the study showed.

Question Youths in Area Shooting
(Democrat-Capital Service)
WARSAW — Two juveniles who were reportedly in a car with an 18-year-old Independence youth when he was shot to death Wednesday about 11 miles southeast of here have been returned to Benton County and are being held in the county jail, according to Benton County Sheriff Robert Breshears.
Dead is Glenn Dale Hyatt, whose body was found about 2:10 p.m. Wednesday lying behind his 1962 Chevrolet about three-tenths of a mile south of Highway 7 on Route VV. The body was found by Doyle Hart, Edwards, who was traveling to Springfield with his wife.
According to Breshears, Hyatt knew the two juveniles and was traveling with them to the Lake of the Ozarks. So far, authorities have not established a motive for the killing, but they have ruled out robbery as a possible reason.
Breshears said the juveniles were traced through a detective's business card found in Hyatt's personal effects. The sheriff said Hyatt had been contacted some time ago by a detective about the possible involvement of one of the two juveniles in a theft case in Kansas City. Hyatt apparently wasn't involved in the case.
Independence authorities located the two juveniles after questioning several persons Wednesday night.

The juveniles were held in the Jackson County Juvenile Detention Center, according to Breshears, and a statement was obtained from one of them saying they were with Hyatt Wednesday.
Floyd Owens, Benton County juvenile officer, filed a petition in the case Thursday seeking the return of the juveniles to Benton County. The pair was returned to Benton County and placed in the county jail Thursday evening.
Breshears said good cooperation between his office and the Independence

Police Department resulted in the quick apprehension of the juveniles.
It was reported that the two youths made three or four attempts to drive Hyatt's car away from the scene of the shooting. However, the car bogged down in mud and was abandoned. Hyatt's body had been thrown out of the car, Breshears said, and was found lying with the feet just three feet off the roadway. The motor of the car was still running when the body was found.
Hyatt was shot once with a 9 mm automatic pistol. The bullet struck him in

Airport Work About To Get Underway

Three and a half years after Sedalians passed a $790,000 bond issue to do the job, improvements for Municipal Airport are now about to be a reality.

At a special meeting Monday, the City Council opened bids on the job, and is expected to let the contract at its next regular session June 5. Once construction begins, the work will take about a year to complete.

The improvements, consisting of a new 5,000-foot runway, apron, connecting taxiway and visual landing aids, will make the Sedalia airport second only to Columbia Regional in size among Central Missouri strips.

Because of inflation and other factors, the expansion will not accomplish what was originally intended back in 1968, but it will permit the airport to move from a general aviation to a basic transport category.

This means that executive jets and feeder lines will be able to land at and serve Sedalia, and that direct air mail service might even be reinstated at some future date. This will all be made possible by construction of the new, longer north-south runway, eliminating dependence on the present 3,600-foot strip, which is plagued by crosswinds.

Other improvements, such as a terminal building, electronic navigation aids and further expansion of runways, presumably will be deferred under the projected three-phase improvement plan for the Municipal Airport.

Total cost of the expansion is expected to be $1,421,180, with the balance beyond the $790,000 local contribution coming from state and federal funds.

The money has been a long time in coming, but the important thing now is that it's here.

Behold, the Flight of the Dove

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Clark Clifford, the eminent dove, last week flew a classic course through the House Foreign Affairs Committee. It was a dazzling performance, much applauded by the evening TV news and by the Sunday papers, but it invites a few dissenting observations nonetheless.

I happen to live quite literally in dove country, up in the Blue Ridge Mountains, and would tell you something of this marvelously talented bird. Unlike the quail, which is constantly heard but not so often seen, the dove is highly visible. Unlike the bashful woodcock, which hides in shady places, the audacious dove delights in public attention.

Yet the dove is notoriously the most difficult prize of the upland hunter. The dove owes his survival not so much to sheer speed, though he is deceptively swift, the genius of the dove lies in his skill in shifting direction—left, right, backwards; now skimming, now soaring. The dove always lights, as if by magic, just ten yards out of range. He can vanish in a second.

Observe the flight of Clark Clifford: "The national security of the United States is not threatened in Vietnam, regardless of the outcome of the fighting." Here he is skimming the truth. He maintains his speed: "The small, underdeveloped non-industrial nation of North Vietnam constitutes no threat to us..." True enough, true enough. Now he soars: "And it is equally clear that Russia and China are not on the march in Southeast Asia." But how did that get to be equally clear? It is communism that is on the march, communism in whatever mask it wears.

Clifford veers: "The American people have two major interests: To get our forces—all our forces—safely out of Indochina, and to get our prisoners back." There, if you please, is the dove in perfect flight, simple, swift, misleading. The sentence flashes by and disappears before the possibility of other major interests

Brezhnev's Prestige On Line at Summit

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, holding out a promise of progress at their Moscow meeting, related an anecdote to President Nixon the eve of his departure.

The anecdote was part of the private message that Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin delivered to the President at Camp David.

Brezhnev had a favorite story, said Dobrynin, about the traveler who asked a grizzled, old Russian farmer how long it would take to walk to the next village. The farmer grunted that he didn't know. With a shrug, the traveler started off toward the village. But as he was striding away, the farmer called after him: "Fifteen minutes."

Surprised, the traveler retorted: "But you said you didn't know how long it would take me to reach the village."

"That was before I saw how big your steps are," said the old man.

Dobrynin, quoting Brezhnev, said the Communist party chief was satisfied from the advance steps that substantial agreements would be reached in Moscow to improve Russian-American relations. Brezhnev's message was that their meeting would not be merely "cosmetic" — a word that the President later repeated to the press to express his optimism about the Moscow outcome.

His optimism was based, however, on more than Brezhnev's encouraging message. The President also had on his desk an intelligence analysis suggesting that Brezhnev's personal prestige was on the line, that he needed to produce favorable results to justify the summit meeting.

Inside the Kremlin, apparently, Brezhnev had encountered harsh opposition to inviting Nixon to Moscow. The military-industrial faction, in particular, felt the summit meeting would undermine their relations with Hanoi just as the North Vietnamese were achieving victories with Soviet equipment.

The Russian marshals were anxious to share in the North Vietnamese victories and to gain an edge over the Chinese in Hanoi. They also wanted to exploit North Vietnamese displeasure over President Nixon's visit to Peking. This would be difficult to do, it was argued, if Nixon were also invited to Moscow.

The opposition to the invitation was so strong that Brezhnev had to invoke his personal authority to overrule the marshals. When the President mined Haiphong harbor, it strengthened the opposition and caused a crisis for Brezhnev. He had to exercise all his powers to keep the summit conference from being cancelled.

The intelligence analysis suggested, therefore, that he needs a successful meeting with Nixon to justify his insistence on going ahead with it.

Mafia-run companies with annual sales of $400 million are foisting off their products on the American housewife through some of the nation's best-known supermarket chains.

So entangled is the Mafia with the products, that their brand names should read "Cosa Nostra Cleaner" or "Crime Syndicate Suds." In fact, they bear the labels of more than a dozen widely sold items.

What has happened is that the Mafia hoodlums have gained control of the companies making the products through intermediaries called "straws" or brokerage deals. The Mafia may also maintain strategically-placed employees within the companies.

Once the Mafia is in corporate control, its muscle men let the supermarkets know that the price of peace is to stock the mob's products prominently on the shelves.

The supermarkets, in a few cases, have resisted the threats of labor strife, arson and even murder which constitute the Mafia's favorite sales pitches.

More often, the retailers have caved in, giving the housewife products whose higher prices include the crime syndicate's cut.

To combat Mafia influence in the grocery business, Senate Commerce Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., will hold new hearings in June on some of the supermarket products. He has already produced public evidence that A and P was unsuccessfully pressured by the Mafia to carry a syndicate-controlled detergent.

With draft calls slackening off, the National Guard has fallen back on recruiting contests to keep up its ranks. Not only has the drive failed, but it appears to violate federal law.

The 113th Tactical Fighter Wing in Washington, for example, reported dismally in its newsletter that the guardsmen are still leaving faster than they're coming in.

Actually, the National Guard may want to reconsider its promises of cash and a Puerto Rican vacation for the winning recruiter-guardsmen. Title 10 of the Federal Code clearly states that "no bounty may be paid to induce any person to enlist in the Armed Forces." When we queried the National Guard, they insisted the rule only applied to those coming in — and not those bringing them in.

Clifford set no records for infallibility. It's thus unclear why he should be regarded as a fount of perfect truth and wisdom when he insists that Nixon's measures "will have no immediate effect on the outcome of the fighting in the South, and probably no effect for many months."

On the contrary, when account is given to the totally different kind of war now being waged, there is reason to believe that Nixon's relatively bloodless measures of "denial" may seriously inhibit a flow of fuel and heavy weapons to the enemy. To some observers, whose record at least matches Clifford's, it seems worth a try.

Clifford's own solution, as he testified, is "short and simple." He flies circles around its essence, but essentially his plan is for the United States to admit defeat and to surrender the whole of Southeast Asia to the Communists. This he describes as an "overall settlement" not incompatible with the interests of Hanoi. It is a solution, one is bound to concede, perfectly in keeping with the swerving flight of the fleeing dove. Now you see him; now you don't.

'Kitchen Debate' Today

WASHINGTON — It is highly unlikely that President Nixon will have a repeat of his famous kitchen debate in Moscow, but, if he does, I can't help thinking how different it might be from the last one.

I can just see the President and Brezhnev facing each other across a hot electric stove in the Kremlin.

"Mr. President," Brezhnev says, "you have many newspapermen with you on your trip."

"Yes," President Nixon replies. "The thing that makes the United States a great country is that we have freedom of the press."

"The thing that makes the Soviet Union a great country," Brezhnev says, "is we don't."

"Our system is better than yours because our newspapermen can write anything they want about their government," President Nixon says.

"Our system is better than yours," Brezhnev retorts, "because they can't."

"Off the record," Nixon says, "how do you do it?"

"We used to shoot them. But now is different. We feel someone criticizing the Kremlin has to be crazy. So we put him in insane asylum until he gets well."

"Do you mean to say that your administration has the authority to put anyone who criticizes you in an asylum?"

"Is correct. Communist system is perfect, so obviously anyone who says it isn't needs medical treatment."

"I wouldn't want it to get out of this kitchen," Nixon tells Brezhnev, "but I feel the same way when one of our press people criticizes our system."

"I know how you feel, Mr. President. Is important for strong government not to have opposition press."

"Tell me, Comrade Brezhnev. If one of your newspapers got hold of some top secret Kremlin papers and printed them on the front page, what would you do?"

"Is impossible any newspaper in Soviet Union would print secret Kremlin papers. If they did, paper would be closed, editors would be sent to labor camp in Siberia, reporters would be put in salt mines and man who gave such secrets to newspaper would be shot at dawn."

"Let me ask you this. If one of your columnists revealed in his column how you made your decision to support India in the Pakistan war, what would you do?"

"Is stupid question. We would take columnist to Lubianka Prison and attach electrical circuits to his body."

"Are you taking notes on this, Henry?" the President asks. "Comrade Brezhnev, what do you do about television commentators who give instant and critical analyses of your speeches?"

"Is no such thing in Soviet Union. Everything said on television is first cleared with us. Only loyal party members may work on TV. Is not same in your country?"

"Unfortunately not," the President says sadly. "Our television people can say anything they want to, and I can't do one thing about it."

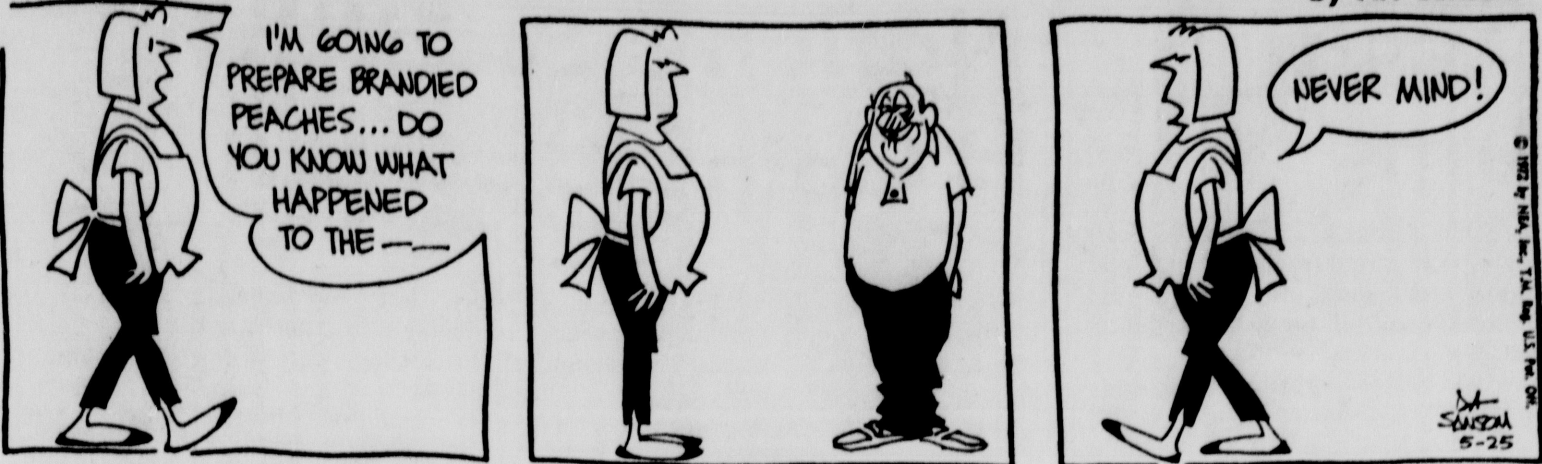

"Why that's terrible!" Brezhnev says.

"You're telling me," Nixon says. "What about congress? Do you have any trouble with your congress when you want to do something for the good of the country?"

"Anyone in party who questions our policies is given job shoveling coal on Caucasian Electric Power Project. When our Communist Party Congress meets, I always get standing ovation."

Readers of Tennyson may recall that Galahad's strength was as the strength of 10 because his heart was pure. That made it rather easy for his father, Sir Lancelot, to teach him how to handle sword, spear and shield. As for his bridge, the Wizard Merlin, who was the first bridge teacher, found him a most apt pupil. Most of Merlin's pupils, like many pupils today, would go right after clubs at trick two, only to find that they would wind up one trick short because of the bad club break. Galahad simply pointed out that he could be sure of nine tricks if he just went right after diamonds. He had only six diamonds, but was sure to establish two of them as winners. Then he surprised his teacher by explaining that he might well wind up with an overtrick on his safe line of play. The young prodigy did exactly this. East won the first diamond and led back a spade. Now Galahad, who had played the three of diamonds the first time, led out his queen. West could do no better than win the trick and clear the spades, whereupon Galahad cashed the last two diamonds while discarding a heart and a club from dummy. East, who had discarded a heart on the third spade, let a second heart go. Now Galahad played king and ace of hearts and by that time his seven spot had become high. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Big Increase Seen In Fair Premiums

The Missouri State Fair has increased its cash premiums by more than $80,000 this year compared to the 1971 exhibition, it was indicated in the 1972 State Fair catalogue.

The Fair will offer $400,858.80 in premiums this year as compared to the $320,159.20 exhibitors vied for in 1971. The quarterhorse races have one of the larger increases, $25,000 to a total of $50,000 this year, because the Missouri Quarterhorse Breeders' Association had doubled its entry fees, according to W.C. Askews, secretary of the Fair.

Another big increase, in the show horses category, will see exhibitors compete for $100,305 this year, as compared to $70,000 in 1971. The reason for this increase is the same as in the quarterhorse races, it was reported.

This year's State Fair Queen contestants will try for $3,100 in premiums. One of the innovations this year, Askew said, was a decision to pay each contestant $100 to help defray travel expenses.

The Fair's admission price this year will be the same as last year: children under age 6 will be admitted free; persons 7 to 12 will pay 75 cents; those over 12, $1.50, and season tickets will sell for $9.50 for the 10-day run.

Askew said the world championship draft horse pulling contest and the world championship pipe smoking competition were new to the Fair this year.

Another featured attraction is Bob Harrington, "the chaplain of Bourbon Street," who will officially open the Fair at 10 a.m. Aug. 18. The star-studded event will have such big-name personalities as Rick Nelson (of the former "Ozzie and Harriet" television show) on Aug. 17; Jerry Lee Lewis and Ernest Tubbs, Aug. 18; Tammy Wynette and Faron Young, Aug. 20; and Lawrence Welk, Aug. 23.

Askew said last year's attendance of 379,256 should be exceeded. "We expect about 500,000 people this year," he said, "and the extra day of the Fair should help."

The official dates for the Fair are Aug. 18-27.

Brunswick Couple Killed In Accident

BRUNSWICK, Mo. (AP) — A Brunswick man and his wife were killed Thursday in the crash of their car and a Norfolk and Western freight about two miles east of here, authorities said.

The victims were identified as Romie W. Spencer, 67, and his wife Mrs. Gladys R. Spence, 57.

The highway patrol said their car pulled from a private drive onto the tracks and into the path of the westbound freight.

Larry R. Lewis, 38, of Moberly, Mo., the engineer, escaped injury.

The deaths were not listed as traffic fatalities because they did not occur on a public highway.

Summit

demands for consumer goods in this country.

But U.S. negotiators are reported to have argued that there should be some settlement of the Soviet World War II lend-lease debt before any favorable economic deals are reached.

The agreement "On the Prevention of Incidents On and Over the High Seas" was signed in Kremlin ceremonies by the secretary of the U.S. Navy, John W. Warner, and the commander of the Soviet navy, Fleet Adm. Sergei G. Gorskoy, and was hailed by Warner as a "landmark occasion."

It is the first high-level military-to-military agreement between the two nations since World War II. Details had been ironed out 10 days ago during Washington negotiations.

The pact, which does not require Senate ratification, expands upon the multination 1958 Geneva convention and is aimed at reducing the risk of high seas accidents or incidents.

The agreement applies only to military vessels — not fishing or merchant ships. It requires military commanders to increase the use of signals, to refrain from "making simulated attacks" and to keep clear of ships launching or recovering aircraft.

The pact allows warships to place craft of the other nation under surveillance but only at a distance which avoids the risk of collision.

Since Nixon became the first American president ever to set foot in Moscow, agreements on cooperation in space, science and technology, medicine and environment have been signed. In each case, negotiations had been completed before the summit began.

Dropped Cigarette Results In Blaze

Sedalia firemen were summoned to the residence of Frank Bridgewater, 320 East Johnson, at 6:09 a.m. Wednesday to extinguish a fire in the front room of the house.

According to firemen, the cause of the blaze probably was a cigarette which accidentally was dropped in a chair. Damage was confined to two chairs and a divan in the room. There also was slight water damage.

Firemen used two hand pump buckets to extinguish the fire.

MPSC Concludes Bell Hearings

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission concluded Thursday nearly three weeks of hearings into a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. request for a rate increase.

The company now has until June 20, and the PSC staff and other interested parties until June 30, to file briefs before the commission hears oral arguments in the case July 6.

The request, which would produce an additional $63.5 million in gross annual revenue for the company, is under suspension until Aug. 29. If the PSC has not reached a decision on it by that time, it will automatically go into effect.

R. R. Shockey, vice president for the company's Missouri-Illinois operations, was one of the last to testify before the hearings came to a close. He told the commission telephone service to Missouri customers would suffer if the company is not permitted to earn what he termed a reasonable rate of return.

Nation's Economy Is Going Upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The direction of the nation's economy is strongly upward, the government's leading economic indicators signaled Thursday.

The Commerce Department's monthly composite index of indicators gained 1.4 per cent in April on top of an upward-revised 1.9 per cent in March. The March increase, earlier reported to be 0.9 per cent, proved the biggest in a year.

The indicators are designed to foretell general economic movements, but their reliability as a precise measure of the economy's strength has been questioned both within and outside of government.

A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said the report supplied new evidence that the economy is expanding strongly.

"We think it probably will become even stronger," the spokesman said.

The Commerce Department said the April increase was broadly based, meaning that virtually all areas of the economy that the indicators are supposed to measure looked good.

Of the eight indicators available for April, only one declined, that measuring the ratio of prices to labor costs. Labor costs have increased more than prices in manufacturing in recent months.

Otherwise, indicators were up for average work week, claims for unemployment insurance, durable goods orders, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, building permits, industrial materials prices, and stock prices.

The index climbed to 140.2 per cent of the 1967 average. It has risen in 17 of the last 18 months and by an average of 1.3 per cent since last September, the time the economy started accelerating.

In other economic developments Thursday:

— Retail food prices dropped for the second straight month, the Agriculture Department said. An average year's supply of groceries cost consumers $9 less in April as a result of a $6 price cutback among middlemen and a $3 reduction for farmers.

— George P. Shultz told the Senate Finance Committee the upturn in the economy brings with it a need to start curtailing federal spending. Without opposition, the committee approved Shultz' nomination to be secretary of the treasury.

Another Commerce Department report showed that while the economy is going up, so is the debt owed by people, businesses and governments at all levels.

The net public and private debt increased to almost $2 trillion at the end of 1971. The debt increased $152.5 billion in 1971 compared with $120.7 billion in 1970.

Thus, debt at all levels increased substantially last year.
